Plan to create new garden town has split opinion among public

Opponents in war of words over merits of 10,000-home Gilston Park development

By Huw Wales

huw.wales@hertssexnews.co.uk

A NEW consultation into proposals to build a new garden town in East Hertfordshire has split public opinion.

Ten thousand homes could be built at Gilston Park, also known as Harlow North, if plans are approved.

A consultation is now under way into the concept framework document which looks at what the new town could look like.

However the proposals, which have been decades in the making, have caused anger among residents who say that there is a lack of infrastructure which isn't being addressed.

There is also frustration over another consultation taking place, with only months until the proposal is looked over by an external examiner.

Spike Hughes, from the campaign group Stop Harlow North, said: "This document it is just the same document that was available a year ago and it was finished in March when we last had a consultation.

Document

"The document they have put out for consultation was absolutely available at the last consultation.

"We have to ask, why they are doing this?"

Campaigners also argued that the consultation document risked giving the impression that the Gilston Park plans were already approved.

Mr Hughes said: "The other issue is that this document is giving the public the impression that it is a done deal.

"There will be an examination in public and at that point that is when the whole issue will be investigated.

"I don't know what they are playing at issuing this document.

"The whole thing is complete and utter nonsense. We have been

An artist's impression of how the Gilston Park Estate could look through this time and time again over the last two years.

"It is a really bad place to put

10,000 people and calls them villages when the settlement will be three times the size of Sawbridgeworth.

"There is no infrastructure there, no water, no rails, no roads and they haven't thought about these problems."

However, proponents of the Gilston Park plans say that it will provide much-needed housing in the area, as well as bringing investment into infrastructure.

Robert Halfon, MP for Harlow, has supported the plans for the new garden town and says that it would be good for the area.

He said: "It is a really important consultation and these plans are way different from those proposals from many years ago.

"In my view they are thoughtful and they are being run predominately by not-for-profit companies that will invest into the neighbouring communities.

"If we get the houses, that will help thousands of people and bring in millions of pounds in investment in infrastructure in both of our neighbourhood areas."

A spokesman for Places for People, the group that will be delivering most of the Gilston Park plans if approved, said: "The plans for the Gilston area will deliver 10,000 new homes and will be supported by a £600 million infrastructure investment package.

"In parallel with East Herts District Council's ongoing public consultation on the concept framework, we will be holding a community drop-in event on Saturday, August 5, between 10am and 3pm at the Manor of Groves in High Wych to explain what the framework is about.

"We would like to encourage residents to come and talk to us about how we will be delivering much-needed infrastructure investment, new schools and extensive parklands across seven new villages.

Framework

Councillor Linda Haysey, leader of East Herts District Council, said: "Starting this week and running until 1 September, we are holding a public consultation on the concept framework document.

"This document sets out what the development could potentially look like and will be used to help create more detailed plans of the Gilston area.

"We would encourage all local residents and stakeholders to share their feedback with us and help us to shape the future of this area."

Developers will also be holding a drop-in session this Saturday, from 10am until 3pm, at Manor of Groves Hotel in Sawbridgeworth, CM21 0JU, for people to see plans and to give their opinions in person.

Firm failed to protect staff from Legionella

A HARLOW company that failed to protect workers from contracting a serious lung infection has lost a court appeal.

G4S Cash Solutions was inspected by Harlow Council in 2013 after a worker contracted Legionnaires' disease, a flu-like disease spread by bacteria that can grow at certain water temperatures.

According to a report, environmental health officers found a 'serious lack of compliance in maintaining water systems at the site', with 'erratic monitoring and testing systems', among a long list of failings.

It also stated the company failed to fully take steps required to improve.

The security firm was fined £1.8 million in September 2016 and, after their initial appeal was thrown out, G4S then renewed their application for leave to appeal the sentence.

Excessive

At the Court of Appeal in London on July 12, the company claimed the fine was excessive.

G4S argued its culpability rating of 'very high' should be reduced to 'high' which could have reduced the punishment.

In giving judgement, judge Alison Russell QC stated that it was difficult to see how any argument could reduce the characterisation of culpability as 'very high' within the sentencing guidelines.

She said G4S was aware of legal obligations and over a period of four-and-a-half years it failed to act, which could only be viewed as a blatant and flagrant disregard of compliance with statutory obligations.

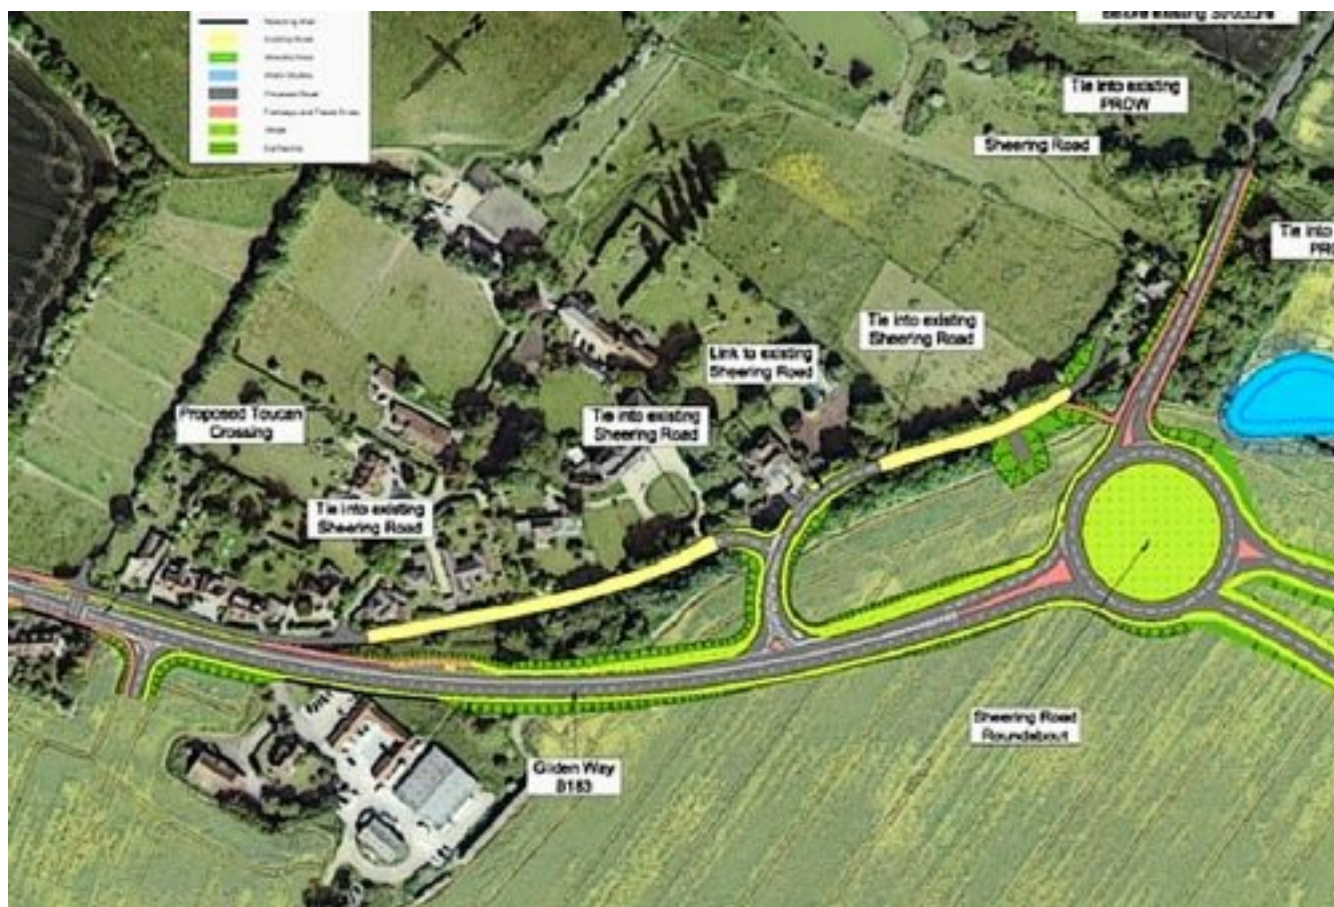

Harlow councillor Danny Purton, portfolio holder for environment, said: "I am pleased the court has upheld the level of fine originally handed down to G4S in full.

"Although G4S did make some improvements to its practices it was aware of its legal obligations to protect its staff and visitors from exposure to Legionella bacteria and, over a period of four-and-a-half years, it had failed to act.

"Once again I want to congratulate Harlow Council's environmental health and legal teams for their hard work and professionalism in securing a successful outcome."

Harlow councillor Danny Purton

A plan of how the revamped junction will look

Work to create a new M11 junction to start in winter

Residents claim new carriageway will increase traffic by 71 per cent

Councillor Kevin Bentley says the changes will be enormous

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

WORK on the contested Harlow M11 junction 7a will begin this winter, Essex County Council has confirmed.

Planning permission has now been granted and the junction will open in 2021.

Country road Gilden Way will be converted into a three-lane carriageway and other roundabouts will be installed as part of the plans, which have angered some Old Harlow residents.

Junction 7a has long been touted as a link to help ease traffic out of Harlow, to reduce congestion at junction 7 and to support housing and business development. County Hall confirmed in a statement yesterday (Wednesday, August 2) that initial works will be concentrated away from the current road to minimise disruption.

Councillor Kevin Bentley, deputy leader, said: "This junction will transform the daily lives of businesses and residents by helping to improve links to and from the M11.

"Junction 7a will be on the doorstep of London Stansted Airport and the Harlow Enterprise Zone - helping to keep Essex moving and supporting economic growth for local businesses.

"This is a major project but we are wasting no time in getting people on the ground to begin preparation works, ensuring we deliver the benefits of this scheme as quickly as possible."

Gilden Way, currently classified as a B road, will see an estimated 71 per cent rise in traffic and fears of noise and congestion have been raised by Old Harlow and Church Langley locals.

Preferred

Harlow Labour councillor Mike Danvers previously said that he would have preferred to have seen a town bypass and accused ECC of holding consultations behind closed doors.

Cllr Danvers also criticised a decision to see funds set aside to improve junction 7 transferred to bankroll junction 7a.

The county council said it attempted to address complaints by lowering the speed limit to 40mph from 60mph along Gilden Way and Sheering Road.

There will also be improvements to the footway for pedestrians and cyclists, new street lighting and pedestrian road crossings.

Access for heavy goods vehicles will be restricted.

Robert Halfon, Harlow MP, said: "I have promised to represent the view of every resident who contacted me.

"We can't get away from the fact that this is a once in a lifetime opportunity to support Harlow and we desperately need that junction."

Businesses refuse to be bothered after arson attack in town

TRADERS near a Harlow barbers that was reportedly petrol bombed said they will not let the incident bother them.

On Tuesday morning (August 1), Essex Police confirmed they are still searching for a man believed to have committed an arson attack on Turkish shop Maxim in Broad Walk.

Just after 3am on Sunday, July 29 the force visited the town centre shop following reports that a bottle of lit petrol had been thrown through the door. A man dressed all in black was seen to throw the item and run towards Terminus Street.

No arrests have been made as the police probe continues.

Nearby

Despite this incident and a late night stabbing on nearby Post Office Walk last week, traders are not concerned.

Linda Sevcia, who works for Martin and Co., on East Gate, Harlow, said the incidents were "not a concern," despite a heavy police presence nearby.

An employee of Frank and Joe's barber shop, on East Gate, Harlow, who did not wish to be named, said: "I do not see what the point is or why they did it.

"It is one of those things." ■ Anyone with information is asked to call Harlow Police Station on 101 or, alternatively, Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Woman climbs house and throws tiles from the roof

Police arrest 31-year-old after she used scaffolding to climb building

By Tommy Wathen
star@hertsexnews.co.uk

ESSEX Police have confirmed that they arrested a woman after an incident in Harlow.

Local residents claimed that the 31-year-old used scaffolding surrounding a residential property to climb onto the roof in Markwell Wood, Harlow, at around 2.30am last Thursday morning.

Vehicles surrounding the property had to be moved after being damaged, while Essex Police advised residents to stay in their homes and the further public to keep away from the area.

At 10.20am, a Harlow Star reporter at the scene confirmed that the woman had been rescued from the roof safely.

A statement from Essex Police read: "Negotiators have ensured the safety of the woman in Markwell Wood and the incident has now been resolved."

"A 31-year-old woman has been arrested on suspicion of criminal damage."

Emergency services had rushed to Markwell Wood with concerns for the welfare of a woman.

Sitting

Shortly after 6.30am, a concerned neighbour told this paper that the woman was sitting on top of the roof of one of the houses and was stripping tiles.

She then continued to throw the tiles off the roof - damaging cars and causing a serious threat to the general public in the area.

Our reporter at the scene confirmed that she originally came down to the scaffolding, to continue communications with the negotiator, but quickly moved back to the top of the roof when she noticed the emergency services moving a fire engine with raised platform into position.

Shortly after that, she returned to the scaffolding and placed the harness on herself, while still talking to the emergency services and negotiator.

By 10.20am, the woman had been brought to safety and was no longer on the roof.

One concerned neighbour, who witnessed the moment when the woman climbed onto the roof said: "The woman was on the roof."

"She went up the scaffolding. Police were on scene very quickly. There were about ten vehicles at one point."

"She is throwing all the roof slates off the roof."

The woman stripped tiles off the roof and threw them down

"The road is closed and nobody can get off the estate."

Another neighbour told our reporter at the scene: "It's a lovely area, really quiet."

"I've lived here for seven years and there has never been anything like this."

"It's Harlow - you don't usually get things like this."

MP chosen to head up select committee

ROBERT HALFON has taken a senior Government role after being dropped by Theresa May as apprentices and skills minister.

The Conservative Harlow MP is now chairman of the Education Select Committee, replacing the ousted Stroud Conservative MP Neil Carmichael.

After a cross-party vote, Mr Halfon was chosen ahead of five other candidates last month to continue his work in the education field.

He said: "It means that I am chairman of a majority commons committee."

Position

"My role is to help the committee."

"I have got a position for education."

"After having been apprentice minister it means I can continue but it is a wider (field) than before."

He explained the new role would oversee and scrutinise schools, post-16 education, careers and universities.

Mr Halfon was named the chairman after a fifth-round runoff against fellow Tory MP Nick Boles.

The Harlow MP took 261 votes to the 213 polled by Mr Boles.

ARKADIUSZ JOZWIK TRAGEDY: CPS says 16-year-old did not mean to kill his

Why teenager who caused death of Pole with just one punch was tried for manslaughter

Wellwishers attended a memorial for Ark Jozwik to spread his ashes the day after his funeral

By Richard Duggan
star@hertsexnews.co.uk

THE Chief Crown Prosecutor for CPS East of England has explained why a Harlow teenager who caused the death of a Polish man last year was charged with manslaughter.

Arkadiusz Jozwik suffered a brain injury and a fractured skull after receiving a punch to the back of the head which sent him crashing to the floor on August 27 last year.

On Monday this week a 16-year-old boy, who cannot be named for legal reasons, was found guilty at Chelmsford Crown Court of causing Mr Jozwik's death.

The 40-year-old Polish national, known as Ark, had been out drinking with friends in Harlow in the hours leading up to his death.

Shortly before 10pm, Mr Jozwik and friends arrived at The Stow shopping centre where they sat drinking alcohol and chatting.

An hour or so later, they bought pizza before sitting on a bench near to a group of teenagers who has been in the area throughout the day.

At about 11.25pm, Mr Jozwik and Radek Koscelski walked over to a boy who was sitting on a bench.

An exchange of words then took place between Mr Koscelski and the boy and a confrontation took place.

Five minutes later, the defendant and three other boys arrived back in the shopping parade on bicycles.

Two of the boys, neither of whom were the defendant, rode closely to Mr Jozwik and Mr Koscelski, which appeared to spark a disagreement.

Gesticulating

The boys joined the other teenagers and the men walked over to the group where there was a heated verbal dispute involving gesticulating and a push between the groups.

At some point, Mr Koscelski was seen to stumble and fall.

It was at this point the defendant, who was in front of the men but behind the rest of the teenagers, sneakily moved around the group and stood behind Mr Jozwik.

He was then seen to jump and forcefully punch him in the head from behind, causing his victim to fall to the ground and smack his head.

The teenagers then fled the scene before emergency services arrived shortly afterwards.

Mr Jozwik never regained consciousness and died in Addenbrooke's Hospital, Cambridge, on August 29.

Following Monday's verdict, Jenny Hopkins, Chief Crown Prosecutor for CPS East of England said: "In reviewing the evidence we were satisfied there was no intent by the youth to kill Mr Jozwik or that he thought that his actions would result in the death of a man.

"We decided therefore that the correct charge was one of manslaughter.

"Manslaughter is the unlawful killing of another person with an intention to do some harm or the foresight that some physical harm may result.

"The court was told the youth put the full force of his body into the punch and he must have been aware when he punched Mr Jozwik in this way that some harm was likely to be caused.

"This was a senseless assault and with that one punch which was over in seconds, the youth was responsible for Mr Jozwik losing his life and causing unimaginable anguish to Mr Jozwik's family and friends.

"We hope that the jury's verdict today has brought some comfort to Mr Jozwik's family and friends that the person responsible for his death has been brought to justice."

The police investigation initially saw six people arrested in connection with Mr Jozwik's death including the defendant, who was then aged 15.

He will be sentenced on September 8, having been released on bail due to a family member being seriously ill.

Speaking after the hearing, Detective Chief Inspector Martin Pasmore of the Kent and Essex Serious Crime Directorate, said: "This has been a complex and difficult investigation and my thoughts very much remain with Mr Jozwik's family, who have lost a dearly loved son and brother in the most tragic of circumstances.

"While nothing will ever bring Mr Jozwik back, now the court proceedings are over, I hope his family can somehow start to rebuild their lives.

A vigil was held in Harlow to pay tribute to Arkadiusz Jozwik

"Essex Police, working in conjunction with the Crown Prosecution Service, has carried out a huge amount of work into trying to establish the course of events that led to Mr Jozwik's death and to find the truth of what happened.

"My team has taken more than 150 witness statements, spoken to more than 300 people during inquiries and reviewed more than 100 hours of CCTV footage.

"More than 30 police officers and staff have been involved in the investigation

Polish national Arkadiusz Jozwik died last year after being punched in the head in Harlow

THE VERDICT: Youth is found guilty

A TEENAGER has this week been found guilty of causing the death of a Polish man in Harlow.

Arkadiusz Jozwik, 40, suffered skull fractures and fatal brain injuries following an altercation outside a takeaway in The Stow shopping hatch on August 27 last year.

Mr Jozwik died in Addenbrooke's Hospital, Cambridge, two days later. A 16-year-old boy, who cannot be named for legal reasons, was arrested on August 30 before being charged by police in December 2016.

He denied causing Mr Jozwik's death by manslaughter, asserting he acted in self-defence.

Unanimous

The trial against the accused, which has been heard at Chelmsford Crown Court, came to a close when the jury unanimously found against the defendant on Monday afternoon.

It took them little more than four hours to find the teen guilty of Mr Jozwik's unlawful death.

There were audible gasps from the public gallery as the jury foreman read out the guilty verdict.

The teenager has been granted bail, owing to a family member's ill health, and will next appear at the sentencing hearing on September 8.

Judge Patricia Lynch QC thanked the jury for their service before releasing them.

Before the jury went off to consider their verdict, the judge gave a brief overview of the facts

Arkadiusz Jozwik

Addressing the jury, Judge Lynch said: "You must set aside any sympathy, you must set aside any bias.

"You must decide on the facts.

"You must not set aside your good common sense and experience of life.

"It is for the Crown to prove he did not act in self-defence.

"The Crown must prove he killed the deceased and that he did so unlawfully."

Brigade union's anger as police boss is given control of fire service

FIREFIGHTERS have branded the Home Secretary's announcement of the creation of the first ever police, fire and crime commissioner in Essex as reckless.

The current Police and Crime Commissioner for Essex, Roger Hirst, will take up the extended role for the county which will include taking control of Essex Fire and Rescue Service in October.

The Fire Brigade Union (FBU) says the independence of the fire service is at risk and fears there could be more frontline cuts.

Alan Chinn-Shaw, secretary of the FBU in Essex, said: "The fire and rescue service holds a special position within our community, having established good relations and high levels of trust with the public. This is because firefighters offer a purely humanitarian, neutral and life-saving service. We are not law enforcers. The introduction of police, fire and crime commissioners threatens this model, which has worked well for decades."

Axed

Since 2010, over 270 frontline firefighter posts have been axed at Essex Fire and Rescue Service – about 20 per cent of the workforce.

It was announced on Tuesday of last week at the Essex Fire and Rescue Headquarters in Kelvedon that Mr Hirst would be taking up the position, marking the first step in the Government's drive to see police and fire services collaborate for the benefit of local communities.

Mr Chinn-Shaw said: "If the public perception of the fire service begins to change and we are seen to have close links with the police force, it will make the work of firefighters a lot more difficult.

"This has already been seen in Essex where our links to the local community have been damaged by our attendance at the evictions of the Crays Hill travellers' site.

"The neutrality of the fire service means we can gain access to areas of society where the attendance of police officers has not always been so welcome.

"It is vital that the fire service and police force maintain distinct and separate identities."

Despite these criticisms, the new police, fire and crime commissioner for Essex has maintained that the services will stay separate.

Mr Hirst said: "We have been working closely with the FBU in the lead-up to this announcement. Both services will stay separate.

"A firefighter will remain a firefighter and a police constable will remain a police constable.

Independent

"I will maintain an independent fire service in the same way that I have maintained independence for the police. The people of Essex deserve to have the best possible emergency services.

"By bringing together the governance of the Essex Police and Essex County Fire and Rescue Service we can support closer working and make investment decisions that will bring even bigger benefits in the future.

"By ensuring a more joined-up response to incidents, providing crime and fire prevention advice, creating community safety hubs, and sharing buildings we can improve how we work and generate significant savings which can then be reinvested back into front line services."

The FBU has been working with the new commissioner and is seeking assurances that there will be no further cuts to the frontline service.

Rescued horses in stunning recovery

THREE obese horses rescued from Harlow fields by the RSPCA have made a stunning recovery.

The charity took the animals to Nazeing equine sanctuary Redwings last month after they were found on Latton Common, Harlow.

Vets found the three mares were severely overweight and were in considerable discomfort with laminitis, as well as lice and leg mites.

But the three are now much healthier and have been named Flix, Arcadia and Glade after Glastonbury stages, as the festival was on when they were rescued.

Happier

Nicola Berryman, Redwings' welfare veterinary surgeon, said: "These have now been treated and the mares are much brighter and happier."

"They're also coming along really well in their weight loss, which we're delighted about, and I absolutely adore these three as they are such friendly cobs."

This is the latest in a string of horse tethering incidents in Harlow.

Harlow Council, the RSPCA and Harlow MP Robert Halfon have all commented on the issue after a graphic image of a dead horse seen in Pinnacles circulated on social media.

The horses are in much better condition since being rescued

Driver cleared over crash that killed biker, 18

Car and motorbike collided in bus lane

By Conor Gogarty
star@hertsexnews.co.uk

A HARLOW woman who was alleged to have caused the death of a teenage motorcyclist by careless driving has been found not guilty.

Tammy Howard, 40, had been on trial charged with causing the death of 18-year-old Liam Brown by careless driving.

Howard, of Rushes Mead, had been driving her black Mini when she was involved in a collision with Mr Brown's motorbike on First Avenue on May 25 last year.

Mr Brown suffered serious head injuries and died in hospital on May 29.

The trial against Howard, presided over by Judge Emma Peters, began at Chelmsford Crown Court on Monday, July 24.

On the third day of the trial, prosecutor John Livingston claimed it had not been safe for the defendant to move from Orchard Croft into the First Avenue bus lane when she did so before the crash with Mr Brown's vehicle.

Tammy Howard outside Chelmsford Magistrates' Court

The court heard Mr Livingston question collision investigation expert Simon Lane, of the Transport Research Laboratory (TRL).

The prosecutor asked: "Would it have been sensible for the driver to have stopped at the zigzag line separating the car lane and the bus lane?"

The expert witness replied: "That would have made a change."

He also said Howard would have had a "reasonable view" of the bus lane if she had stopped at the line.

Mr Lane found that Howard was travelling between 11 and 15 miles per hour as she moved into the bus lane, while PC Burke provided a figure of 13.7 miles per hour.

When asked what would have happened if Howard had moved at five miles per hour towards the zigzag line and stopped, Mr Lane said: "The motorbike would have gone beyond the point of impact. The collision never would have occurred."

"Creeping forward would obviously increase the time available to all parties concerned."

"It would change the dynamics of this collision completely."

Mr Lane told the court he believes Howard was taking care while moving across the junction.

The prosecutor said: "The obligation is on the driver who is crossing another lane to be extremely careful in the way it is done."

On Thursday a jury cleared Howard of any wrongdoing.

He sets world record for most items caught by canine in 30 seconds

Hagrid is officially a top dog

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

GIANT Old Harlow dog Hagrid has set a Guinness World Record on CBBC show Officially Amazing.

Fresh from an appearance on ITV's Britain's Got More Talent, the 12-stone Leonberger was back on TV to break his own record for most items caught by a dog in 30 seconds.

His owner David Woodthorpe-Evans filmed the episode with host Ben Shires last autumn but had to keep their success a secret until the broadcast.

Mr Woodthorpe-Evans said: "It was a fun thing to do with your dog. He [Ben Shires] was a really nice guy and we had a good time filming with him."

"We were approached by the BBC [after Hagrid made his name at a world-record stall at a dog show in London].

"They asked if we wanted to do the Officially Amazing show.

"It was filmed last September. It is the way television works and it has just been broadcast."

A Leonberger is a cross between a Newfoundland and a St Bernard. Hagrid, who is five, stands at 6ft when outstretched and can eat three turkey carcasses a day.

He set a similar world record on Britain's Got Talent for the fastest time for a dog to catch ten items and was a particular favourite of host Stephen Mulhern.

The YouTube video of Mr Woodthorpe-Evans throwing food to the dog has now been seen more than one million times.

Despite their popularity the act exited the talent show at the first round, but the family can be proud of Hagrid now being a double world-record holder.

Mr Woodthorpe-Evans said: "I never know if something else will come up. But if nothing does then we will just enjoy our dog."

A visual of a Crossrail train: the Crossrail 2 proposals do not extend as far as Harlow Town at present

Call to include Harlow in Crossrail 2 bonanza

New line is set to go as far as at Broxbourne, two stops away

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE leader of Harlow Council is determined for the town not to be missed out of Crossrail 2 plans.

The £30bn investment remains on track to connect Hertfordshire with London and Surrey, but a Network Rail chief said this week the line would stop at Broxbourne, two stations short of Harlow Town.

Councillor Jon Clempner previously wrote to Chancellor Philip Hammond to push for Harlow Town to be included to boost the town's economic growth.

After Crossrail 2 survived Transport Secretary Chris Grayling's manifesto cull, Network Rail announced a fresh consultation will now take place. If plans go ahead, the number of tracks between Tottenham Hale and Broxbourne will double from two to four.

But Chris Curtis, Network Rail head of Crossrail 2, said this would be as far as the line will go, when asked about the chances of it extending to Harlow.

Commuters

He said: "Our proposed Crossrail 2 route starts in Broxbourne and would enable improvement for Harlow's rail commuters and leisure users by separating the town's fast train services from the slower services that stop at all stations between Broxbourne and London."

Cllr Clempner said yesterday (Wednesday) that he will not give up the fight and called on the Government to support the town.

He also stated that he would like to see the line four-tracked beyond Broxbourne and into West Essex.

Cllr Clempner said: "We continue to make the case that Crossrail 2 terminating in Harlow, and the four-tracking of the West Anglia mainline, will benefit not just Harlow, but the whole of the London Stanstead Cambridge Corridor.

"It will unlock economic and housing growth.

"While the Crossrail 2 growth commission recognised the strength of the case there is still work to do to secure the investment that Harlow needs, on this and a number of other areas."

He added that the motion is supported by all other local councils, including Broxbourne. Mr Grayling's decision to press ahead with more London investment and leave plans to modernise northern railways caused some controversy.

Crossrail 2 could arguably support the town's new investment in the shape of Harlow Enterprise Zone and Public Health England's new headquarters in Pinnacles, Harlow.

Decision

"Ultimately this will be a decision for Government," continued Cllr Clempner.

"I would urge all elected representatives, business leaders and others to continue to make the case for investment in infrastructure, housing, jobs and skills to secure a bright future for Harlow and the surrounding region."

Motorway worker almost hit by M11 getaway car

A HARLOW man feels lucky to have dodged a getaway car involved in a high-speed chase on the M11.

Motorway repair worker Eric Woods, 44, of Churchfield, was helping complete an emergency patch-up near junction 6 on the southbound stretch on Friday at around 5pm.

But as traffic crawled by, his team were taken by surprise as a car approached at 50mph on the hard shoulder and came within inches of hitting them.

Mr Woods said: "We were working away and this car came out of nowhere. He went down the hard shoulder. He came straight through to where we were working.

"All the traffic cones went up in the air and we had to jump backwards. The police were chasing him."

He added: "I was pushed out of the way by a colleague of mine. It was quite frightening. It was close."

The car, which was possibly a silver Peugeot or Citroen, passed within five inches of the crew, according to Mr Woods, who has worked on motorways for 11 years. Three police cars and one plain car were in pursuit.

"It was quite lucky," he continued. "We did not realise how close we were. We stood there in shock."

"If it had been another five inches he could have hit quite a few of us."

The incident was followed by a crash two hours later near Chigwell and Loughton on the M11.

An off-duty policeman was reportedly sprayed with a substance. Essex Police was unable to comment on Mr Woods' account.

TEAMSPORT KARTING: Our man pulls on a racesuit and gets behind the wheel On track to be Formula One's next superstar?

A NEW indoor karting track has opened in Harlow. The £1.2 million TeamSport venue at River Way boasts a 500-metre, multi-level circuit with 15 bends, long straights and has the capacity for 16 racers to compete at one time. It's been very popular since opening just over two weeks ago, so we sent reporter WILLIAM MATA down to try it out and find out if he's the next Lewis Hamilton...

BECOMING a Formula One champion is one of many dreams that I have never bothered chasing, but in Harlow's new karting track I sensed an opportunity.

I left the office to check out TeamSport's indoor circuit at the River Way industrial site to see if racing is my forte.

After being handed a generously sized racing suit and given a safety briefing it was time to get behind the wheel of a 40mph kart.

For two 15-minute sessions I had the track to myself but I took the chance to pit myself against Matt, one of the centre's instructors.

It proved to be not much of a contest. The instructor (sometimes quite literally) drove rings around me and appeared to be able to lap me at will.

One of the first things I found was the weight of the steering and the physicality of driving the kart.

It was several laps before I got used to this and not long before my arms ached with the effort as I negotiated the twisty layout.

I went in thinking 40mph did not sound particularly fast, but sat more or less on the floor whizzing round inches away from barriers I was quite out of my comfort zone.

Our man William Mata out on the track and getting some expert advice before another run out

Matt said at the end of my first session that I was holding back too much and encouraged me to floor it around the bottom half of the track. Pushing harder didn't seem possible.

I was flung from side to side in an effort to hold the wheel and had to wrestle with my kart to keep it from spinning (something I did several times).

The ramped section up was particularly unforgiving on my back.

But I did improve and finished with a best lap time of 38 seconds.

Not brilliant considering the best guys can clock 35 in their sleep and the record is 33.

Although it was honestly only half-way round the second lap I realised I should probably stick to the day job, I had great fun and felt far from dejected at the end.

I left feeling exhausted but although Formula One may not be my calling my enjoyment and desire to beat my time has left me with a sense that I will be back.

£200,000 pledged to help improve security in town

Three new community safety officers to target antisocial behaviour

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HARLOW Council has pledged £200,000 to beef up security in the town centre and shopping hatches.

Three new community safety officers will work with the public and community groups to target antisocial behaviour and environmental crime, such as fly-tipping and graffiti.

These staff will assist Essex Police and provide a presence in the town as well as The Stow, Bush Fair and Staple Tye.

The local authority's cabinet pledged to enforce the measures, which will be financed by a budget underspend from last year, at a meeting on Thursday, July 20.

Increase

Councillor Jon Clempner, leader of Harlow Council, said: "Nationally there has been an increase in crime and locally our communities have been unsettled by high profile incidents.

"For most (people) Harlow remains a safe place to live, work and visit.

"These steps are about reassuring and supporting our residents and businesses."

The new officers will join the council's Community Safety Team who dealt with 3,651 reports from April 2016 to March 2017.

While they do not have the power to arrest individuals they are able to impose acceptable behaviour contracts, ASBOs, dispersal orders, parenting contracts and fixed penalty notices.

The council has pledged the new staff will be a "highly visible" presence.

This move follows concerns about a lack of police in Harlow town centre and high profile crimes, including a late night stabbing in Post Office Walk.

Mr Clempner added: "We want to work with (residents and businesses) to tackle any issues head on and respond directly to some of the local concerns and the national picture.

"We will be taking a zero-tolerance approach and using a range of measures to prevent antisocial behaviour but to do that we need the extra resources in place.

"Improvements to The Stow and Bush Fair shopping centres are about raising pride in these areas but also discouraging antisocial behaviour and criminal activity along with uniformed officers working in these areas."

Warning is issued over items on train tracks

GREATER Anglia trains have hit 25 items left on the tracks so far this year, figures have revealed.

The statistics are part of a safety campaign warning the public of the dangers of dumping items on the tracks.

Since 2013 Greater Anglia trains have hit 323 things that had been left on the track side.

The items dumped by the rails include old pushchairs, bricks, and drain covers.

Kevin Cox, a Greater Anglia driver, once hit a washing machine that had been dumped on the tracks in Essex.

Nightmare

He said: "It was a nightmare scenario. I saw the washing machine and realised I couldn't stop the train in time.

"Not only is it dangerous, but also if a train hits an object it can injure customers, damage or even derail the train and cause delays and cancellations."

Greater Anglia, along with the British Transport Police (BTP) and Network Rail launched the #StayRailSafe campaign to keep people safe while near the railway.

Jay Thompson, head of safety, security and sustainability at Greater Anglia, said: "The railway is not a playground. People who put obstructions on the track are endangering their lives, and the lives of others."

PAST TIMES

The House of Windsor is celebrating its centenary this year. MARION McMULLEN checks out 100 years of royal highs and lows

THE House of Windsor has seen four monarchs so far – George V, Edward VIII, George VI and the nation's longest reigning sovereign Elizabeth II.

But it also experienced the abdication crisis in 1936 when Edward VIII gave up the throne to marry Wallis Simpson. Edward VIII's reign lasted just 326 days – less than 11 months. He was never crowned.

Elizabeth II's reign has lasted more than 65 years. She overtook ancestor Queen Victoria to become the longest-serving British monarch on September 9 2015.

The German name Saxe-Coburg-Gotha came to the family in 1840 with the marriage of Queen Victoria to Prince Albert. Albert was born in Bavaria and was the younger son of the duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha.

Because of anti-German feeling during the First World War, George V – Albert's grandson and Elizabeth II's grandfather – issued a royal proclamation on July 17 1917, ditching Saxe-Coburg-Gotha and making the royal family "the House and Family of Windsor" and announcing that they would "relinquish and discontinue the use of all German Titles and Dignities."

The name Windsor – after the 11th century castle – was the final choice for the royal family, but other suggestions included Tudor-Stuart and Guelph, which was the Hanoverian name. It was Lord Stamfordham, the King's private secretary, who suggested Windsor. Windsor is the oldest and largest continually occupied castle in Europe and was built in the 11th century.

The Royal Mint has marked the historic anniversary of the House of Windsor with a commemorative £5 coin which features Windsor Castle's Round Tower. Designed by Timothy Noad, it is based on the original badge approved by the Queen's father, George VI, in 1938. Among the commemorative coins available is a 22-carat Gold Proof Coin (£1,935).

The Duke and Duchess of York (later King George VI and Queen Elizabeth) spent their honeymoon in 1923 at Polesden Lacey in Surrey. The coronation in 1937 was the first true outside broadcast and was captured on film using a mobile control van.

After Elizabeth II's accession in 1952, the Queen declared that the royal family's surname would still be Windsor and not Mountbatten, much to the Duke of Edinburgh's annoyance. "I'm just a bloody amoeba," he is said to have shouted, when learning his children would not bear his surname. He later won a concession in 1960 when it was announced that the Queen's direct descendants – other than those with the style of Royal Highness and the title of Prince or Princess – when they needed a surname would use Mountbatten-Windsor, although the royal house remains the House of Windsor.

The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge used the surname Mountbatten-Windsor during the recent invasion of privacy court case in France over topless photos taken of Kate while she was on holiday in 2012.

The House of Windsor faced scandal and turmoil in the 1990s. The Queen branded 1992 her annus horribilis after three of her four children's marriages had ended or were on the rocks, and Windsor Castle went up in flames.

The monarchy was further rocked when Diana, Princess of Wales was killed in a car crash in 1997 and the Queen was accused of not reacting quickly enough to the nation's grief.

Windsor remains one of the Queen's favourite retreats. She heads to the Berkshire castle most weekends. She spent much of her childhood at Windsor during the Second World War when German bombing raids on London made it too dangerous for the royal children to sleep at Buckingham Palace.

The Duke of Edinburgh avoided his own 90th birthday exhibition at Windsor Castle six years ago claiming it was a lot of fuss about nothing.

The Queen, who turned 91 this year, has received many gifts over the years, but is said to like practical presents, but not overly extravagant ones. Her sons and daughters have apparently delighted the monarch over the years with household items such as a washing-up apron and a casserole dish. The Princess Royal gave her Billy Bass the singing fish – which moves and mimes the words to Take Me To The River and Don't Worry, Be Happy. She was so amused by the mounted fish that she was apparently given six more for Balmoral.

Youngsters raise funds in memory of Bradley

WILLIAM Martin Infant and Junior School raised £450.44 in a tribute fundraiser for young cancer victim Bradley Lowery.

The six-year-old football fan lost his battle with neuroblastoma last month after famously spending his final year as a friend of England player Jermain Defoe.

The Harlow junior school created a heart on the playground to pay their respects.

The money, raised through children donating cash to dress up in football kit, will go to the Bradley Lowery Foundation.

FILM REVIEWS

With Damon Smith

Sally Hawkins puts in an extraordinary performance as Maud Lewis

Portrait of the artist

Director Aisling Walsh's moving drama paints a dignified portrait of Canadian folk artist Maud Lewis, who weathered agonising rheumatoid arthritis as she shared her vision of the world in brightly coloured paintings.

Filmed on location in Ireland and Newfoundland, Maudie is an inspirational story of triumph against adversity, celebrating the endurance of one indefatigable human spirit in a bitterly cold, tumbledown shack at the mercy of the elements.

Sally Hawkins, Oscar-nominated for her supporting turn in Blue Jasmine, is extraordinary in the demanding title role. It's a transformative performance reminiscent of Daniel Day-Lewis' stellar work in My Left Foot, capturing Lewis' dignity and determination as her physical state deteriorates: an increasingly stooped posture, unsteadiness on her feet, unresponsive fingers twisted into a gnarled claw.

The pain that ripples through her body is palpable in each shuffle but Hawkins never resorts to grandstanding or shameless emotional manipulation to earn our unswerving admiration and empathy.

MAUDIE (12A)

When the Oscar nominations are announced early next year, it will be a travesty if she isn't among the five names in the hotly contested race for Best Actress in A Leading Role.

Maud Dowley (Hawkins) lives in 1930s Nova Scotia with her Aunt Ida (Gabrielle Rose) and brother Charles (Zachary Bennett), who believes his sister is helpless and at the mercy of her arthritis.

She determines to prove them both wrong by taking a position as a housekeeper for a local man, Everett Lewis (Ethan Hawke), who peddles fish in a large wheelbarrow and lives in a wooden shack on the edge of town.

"You can't take care of yourself let alone a house!" scoffs Charles.

Unperturbed, Maud cooks and scrubs through her physical pain, and daubs "a happy little chicken" and flowers on the shack's walls to brighten up her new home.

Ethan Hake as Everett and Sally Hawkins as Maud

She also adorns cards with her primitive depictions of the natural world and a local woman, Sandra (Kari Matchett), commissions a full-size painting.

Maud's art gains attention in the media and Everett allows her to transform the shack into a makeshift studio, where passers-by can purchase her work.

"I don't know why people pay for these," snipes one shopkeeper. "My five year-old could do better."

Love blossoms between Maud and her gruff employer while Nova Scotia freezes.

Maudie rests almost entirely on Hawkins' hunched shoulders and she carries the picture through its occasional lulls.

Hawke is solid support and there is an endearingly awkward rapport between the couple.

"We're like a pair of odd socks," Maud observes tenderly.

The script gifts the two actors some incredibly touching scenes including an outpouring of emotion about the death of Maud's baby daughter that is played with heart-rending restraint.

Sometimes, films of few words are the best films.

VALERIAN AND THE CITY OF A THOUSAND PLANETS (12A)

Armed with a reported budget of around 200 million US dollars, French writer-director Luc Besson delivers a rip-roaring spectacle that assaults the eyes but seldom touches the heart.

Valerian And The City Of A Thousand Planets brazenly melds elements of Star Wars and Avatar to explore the destruction of otherworldly races in the 28th century.

It's evident that this is the opening salvo of a potential franchise but it's hard to see further adventures for these poorly sketched characters when on-screen chemistry between leads Dane DeHaan and Cara Delevingne is inert and plotting is so haphazard.

The Emoji Movie is at cinemas this weekend

THE EMOJI MOVIE (U)

The Emoji Movie is a computer-animated adventure set inside a teenage boy's mobile phone, which hacks the source code from Inside Out and Zootopia to invent a metropolis where these tiny text message icons live, perpetually at the beck and call of the user.

It's an intriguing premise but director Tony Leondis, who co-wrote the script with Eric Siegel and Mike White, delivers a horribly misjudged journey of self-discovery that can be neatly summed up with one emoji: poop.

Jack Lowden stars as Steven Patrick Morrissey

ALSO RELEASED: ENGLAND IS MINE (15)

Set before Steven Patrick Morrissey became the iconic lead singer of alternative rock band The Smiths, director Mark Gill's slow-burning biographical drama charts Morrissey's formative years as he wrestles with his demons in the bedroom of his parents' home in 1976 Manchester. Jack Lowden, recently seen in Dunkirk, stars as Morrissey while Laurie Kynaston stars as future Smiths collaborator Johnny Marr.

SPOTLIGHT

Irish free-style comedy rap... is not the easiest to explain

How do you describe what you do?

(LAUGHS) I'm an Irish free-style comedy rapper. It's a very unusual job title. Now I don't even think twice about it. If I'm at a wedding and someone asks what I do, I say 'Irish rapper' and I can see them thinking 'Okaay'.

I was definitely self-conscious when I first started. It was a very, very small circle of rappers in Dublin back then.

We could all comfortably fit in a small room. London was a big hip hop circuit, but there was not that much in the way of exchange.

London was not saying 'We've got to get some of that Irish hip hop.'

You've created improv songs on Alan Carr's Happy Hour with the likes of Noel Fielding, Michelle Keegan and Judge Rinder and stole the show on 8 Out Of 10 Cats Does Countdown. Do you enjoy doing TV?

THE one I loved was just before Christmas on Alan Carr's Happy Hour. It was a private highlight for me.

I was doing a freestyle about minor irks and I asked Judge Rinder what was his irk and he said 'My cleaner mislaid my 18th-century erotic statue.' It turned into my favourite song. Sometimes backstage you try and guess what might come up, but 18th-century erotic statues were not up there.

What was it like supporting Ed Sheeran on his 2012 UK tour?

ED IS amazing. He's a very good free-style rapper and it's how we got to know each other.

We did a little bit of stuff before he became famous and then we supported him on his tour.

It was such a fun space for us to be part of - to be in front of 5,000-strong audiences and people screaming.

When we went back to the comedy venues it was like 'Why are they not screaming at the stage?'

TOP HIP-HOP IMPROV TEAM ABANDOMAN HAVE COMEDY ALL RAPPED UP. ROB BRODERICK TALKS TO MARION McMULLEN ABOUT ED SHEERAN, FALSE LEGS AND FREESTYLING WITH JUDGE RINDER

You are now big favourites at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival. What was it like when you first started?

IT WAS insane. The first Abandoman show was in 2008 and there was pretty much no structure.

Looking back it was crazy, we only had a couple of people and a reviewer in and, given the whole idea of the show is made up of suggestions from the audience, everyone who was there had 20 minutes of songs written about them. It was so weird.

Then last year we sold more than 10,000 tickets at the festival.

We were selling 400 tickets a day, which was amazing. We're back this year with The Musical In My Mind.

How did you develop your comedy style?

I WAS an Irish guy free-styling and a lot of people were curious.

I was doing stand-up with rapping on the side and then I told venues 'I'm no longer doing stand-up, but free-styling hip hop improv.' I must have sounded like a man who has just discovered hip hop, rapping in a vacuum, it was a little hard to explain to people in the beginning.

Your songs are created from audience suggestions. Have you ever been stumped?

NOT so much. Backstage, when you are waiting to go on, you try and guess what might come up, but it's impossible.

You sometimes think 'How is this happening?' There was a lovely one at one show. In the front row were five guys all from the army celebrating a fifth anniversary for one of their friends. It was the anniversary of him losing a leg and they had gotten him a new leg and the man was determined to get his leg into a song and I was there on stage holding his leg. I definitely did not expect that.

You will be touring the UK this autumn with your Life + Rhymes show. What can people expect?

(LAUGHS) It's a fictional biopic that spans 20 years of our attempt to 'make it' as a band.

The audience will not only witness the highs, lows and scandals, but they will form the supporting cast every night.

When stuff gets weird that's when I start to enjoy it. We've got a lot of lovely gigs. Being on the road is one of my favourite things. It's a lot of fun performing.

All the songs come from the crowd and people become stars on stage. They even get asked for photos afterwards. It's lovely to go past and see photoshoots between strangers.

SOUND OUT

Westlife's Shane buoyed by new Eastern promise

THE first Shane Filan knew about the biggest hit of his career was when thousands of Chinese fans started pleading with him to sing it. The Irish pop favourite has enjoyed 14 chart-topping singles with Westlife, but in Asia it is a YouTube track of an old demo that has become his most popular song.

Beautiful In White has already had more than 70 million views and is now the most requested wedding song in South East Asia.

But Shane had no idea how popular the love song was until he performed in Beijing.

"People were shouting out requests and they were all calling for the same song. I was thinking 'Are they saying Beautiful In White?' I actually stopped the show, stopped the music and went to the front row and asked a girl what song they wanted to hear and they all started singing it.

"I began singing the chorus and the guitarist began strumming along and they went bananas in the crowd. The same thing happened every night I performed the song after that on the tour. I thought 'I'm going to have to release this'."

Shane laughs: "The whole thing is bizarre, crazy. It's my most popular song in Asia and I knew nothing about it. It was a complete shock to me. It just went viral on its own. It's definitely my biggest hit - the power of the internet."

Shane originally recorded a demo of the song at the famous Abbey Studios in London as a possible Westlife album track, but it was never released... until now.

It is one of the tracks on his new solo album Love Always, which includes cover versions of classic love ballads alongside new tracks.

Shane says the hardest part was selecting only 12 songs for his third solo album.

"There were about 40 to 50 songs on the first list, we could have made five albums, and we had to bring it down. I probably recorded 17 or 18 songs and then chose the final 12. There were a couple of country songs I tried that didn't make it. I just thought some songs were not me or were not right for this album. But other songs I knew from the first few lines were perfect."

Shane also invited fans to send in suggestions for covers and was surprised at the overwhelming response.

He laughs: "Some people asked me to cover old Westlife songs, but I've already done the originals so that did not make sense to me. The fan suggestion that has made it to the album was a song I had never thought about - Eternal Flame by

ASIA HAS TAKEN SHANE FILAN TO ITS HEART BUT THE FORMER BOYBAND MEMBER HAD NO IDEA ONE OF HIS OLD DEMOS WAS THE TOP WEDDING SONG THERE, MARION McMULLEN DISCOVERS

Shane Filan is bouncing back after the property crash left him bankrupt

The Bangles. It's such a great song and has lots of memories for me as well and, as soon as I started singing it, it felt right.

"I just love the version on the album and the lady who suggested it is mentioned on the album credits.

"This is an album I have been wanting to make for a long time. I love singing ballads and this album is full of my all-time favourite songs."

Heaven by Bryan Adams is one of Shane's personal favourites and there are also three original songs scattered among the old favourites.

"The great thing about this new album and forthcoming tour is that the set list is going to be so strong with the addition of these songs, with some of my earlier singles and obviously the Westlife favourites.

"The fans will know every single world of every song. It's nice to look forward to a tour knowing the crowd are really going to love it. It's going to be a new chapter and everyone is going to be singing along to these songs."

Shane grew up inspired by Michael Jackson and the Backstreet Boys and says his time with Westlife "fulfilled all of our dreams 1,000 times over."

The youngest of seven children,

Shane grew up in Sligo in the north-west of Ireland and has dealt with both international success and bankruptcy. He lost millions when the Irish property market crashed, but he set to work and has seen his solo career take off following the end of Westlife in 2012.

He also took part in the Bridge Over Troubled Water recording that Simon Cowell put together to help the Grenfell Tower fire residents.

X Factor judge Louis Walsh remains Shane's manager and is delighted with the Love Always album. "Louis got a tad excited," smiles Shane. "He's such a big fan of all the old songs."

The 38-year-old singer adds: "Westlife was such a such a huge part of my life and we had phenomenal success. I feel really happy and really good at the moment. I'm on my third album and big tours are planned. I want to do this for the rest of my life."

■ Love Always is released on August 25 and is distributed by Absolute Label Services. Go to shanefilan.com for tour and album information.

PET SHOP BOYS - RELEASE, FUNDAMENTAL AND NIGHTLIFE

A PET SHOP BOYS reissue would never fail to excite fans but throw in some unreleased demos and you would be foolish not to expect a feeding frenzy - Nightlife, Release and Fundamental, come with copious bonus tracks.

The intriguing One Way Street demo - originally written for Bananarama, who turned it down - is catchy. Also on Fundamental is The Performance Of My Life. Written for Shirley Bassey's 2009 album The Performance, Tennant and Lowe recorded their own version as well which offers the song a new found emotional depth.

So, if in doubt, take Tennant's advice; ignore the remasters and aim for the newer (old) ones.

ALICE COOPER - PARANORMAL

ALICE COOPER shows no signs of slowing down on Paranormal. While he has softened his signature snarl, the 69-year-old still delivers rip-roaring tracks that stay true to his anarchic and fun-loving sides as he pulls together half a century of influences.

Kicking off with an operatic overture in the title track, we are updated on Alice's feelings about everything from falling in love when you "can't get up", to the lies of religion (Dead Flies) and his Cadillac (Dynamite Road). With bonus tracks, including Genuine American Girl, freshly recorded with the 1970s band, Paranormal is an ode to the Alice Cooper legacy, offering something for the diehard fan and the first-timer.

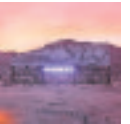

ARCADE FIRE - EVERYTHING NOW

ARCADE FIRE have always been fans of cryptic and creative album releases. With Everything Now, however, they have transformed into sycophantic corporate lackeys for Everything Now Corp, a capitalist behemoth for which culture is nothing and "content" is everything.

The band's fifth studio album runs a gamut of styles and sounds without settling on one, or on any of the things that brought them global critical acclaim. Progress is vital for any artist, but the first 15 minutes run closer to Abba in their disco beats, and later tracks swing between two-tone ska, '80s hair rock and humdrum easy listening.

ROBIN JAROSSI INVESTIGATES THE 1960s 'RIPPER' WHO DUMPED MURDERED PROSTITUTES NAKED... AND WAS NEVER CAUGHT

SWINGING London woke up on April 24, 1964, to the news that a depraved serial killer was stalking its streets.

The body of Helen Barthelemy, 22, had been found naked in an alley. She was the second victim discovered that month and the third since February.

Like the other victims, Helen worked the streets of West London. Along with Hannah Tailford and Irene Lockwood, she was petite and vulnerable.

The killer's grim trademark was the removal of his victims' clothing and belongings – even false teeth – earning him the nickname Jack the Stripper.

Det Chief Supt John du Rose, led the inquiry. Known as Four-Day Johnny for his speed in solving cases, Mr du Rose said: "There are hundreds of police involved, more than any inquiry ever before. We'll get him. You can be sure of that."

Yet they never did. How did the murderer evade the massive investigation?

Reviewing rarely seen case files, old coroners' reports and photographs exposes a shocking insight into the underbelly of 1960s London.

The 'Nude Murders' as they became known revealed a brutal sex trade flourishing on many West London streets.

THE INVESTIGATION

MR DU ROSE, one of Scotland Yard's top five investigators, took charge of the Nude Murders case in February 1965. He had a 200-strong CID force, plus another 100 officers. The Special Patrol Group of 300 officers was also called in.

Observation points were set up around West London to monitor cars seen repeatedly at night. Officers did intelligence-gathering in pubs and clubs. Policewomen disguised as prostitutes noted car registration plates and suspicious behaviour.

A break-through came when dust and paint particles on the last four women revealed they'd been stored at an abandoned factory on Heron Trading Estate, where Bridget 'Bridie' O'Hara was found. Police began interviewing 7,000 employees.

THE SUSPECTS

DETECTIVES probed suspects including a dental surgeon, a mortuary assistant and the victims' partners.

No evidence was found. But one suspect did raise major suspicions, a disgraced former detective.

Could their killer have been a cop?

No one has ever been brought to justice over the 1960s murders of (L-R) Elizabeth Figg, Helen Barthelemy, Gwyneth Rees, Hannah Tailford, Mary Fleming, Bridget 'Bridie' O'Hara, Irene Lockwood and Frances Brown

THE victims were prostitutes, around 5ft 1in. The first two women were found in the Thames; the next four all had dust and paint particles on their bodies, revealing they had been undressed and stored before being dumped in public places.

Four had also been asphyxiated. None showed signs of sexual violence, but detectives speculated they had been killed during a sex act. Hannah, 30, was found on February 2, 1964, on the Thames foreshore by the Corinthian Sailing Club, Hammersmith. She had left her young daughter with her partner at their flat, on the night she was last seen, January 24.

Pregnant Irene, 25, was found on April 8 by Corney Reach steps in Chiswick. She was last seen in The Windmill pub, Chiswick High Road, the night before her death. Helen was dumped in Brentford on April 24. The last positive sighting was at her bedsit in Willesden three days earlier. Her body gave up the first major clue: dust and paint particles.

Victim Mary Fleming, 30, had been soliciting on Queensway on July 11. Three days later, her body was found in a street in Chiswick. Next was Frances Brown, 21. She and fellow prostitute Beryl Mahood had been picked up by two motorists near Portobello Road.

Frances was found on November 25, in a Kensington car park. Beryl gave police descriptions of the motorists. Bridget 'Bridie' O'Hara, 27, meanwhile, had been drinking in Shepherd's Bush Hotel before leaving with an unidentified man. She was found on February 16, 1965, on a trading estate in Acton.

Two other prostitutes who may have been victims of the killer were Elizabeth Figg, 21, found on June 17, 1959, and Gwyneth Rees, 22, found on November 8, 1963.

THE KILLER

THE killer stopped his spree after Bridie's murder. The probe was rapidly wound down. It had failed because Scotland Yard's top officers had little expertise in catching serial killers.

Modern investigations would use new profiling techniques. Expert geographic analysis in my book reveals the killer probably lived in a small area stretching west from central Hammersmith or Holland Park. Today's detectives use such tools to narrow their search.

It is sobering to think the killer could be alive today, perhaps in his late 70s. His crimes are largely forgotten, no doubt due to a lack of sympathy for the victims, seen as being outside of decent society.

Who was he? Probably a policeman, though not the disgraced detective, who could not even carry out a burglary without being spotted.

Yet the possibility remains that the killer was a more devious officer, involved in the probe.

If so, he had a fantastic advantage in keeping ahead of Mr Du Rose's team.

He would know the night observation points, the alleys and abandoned factories.

He could even have stalked victims while on duty. He would know when to stop if the manhunt was closing in.

He evaded Scotland Yard's searchlight, yet he was probably in plain sight all along.

He was most likely one of them.

TIN MAN by Sarah Winman, Tinder Press, £12.99 (ebook £6.49)

ACTRESS and writer Sarah Winman's third novel Tin Man is a heart-breaking story about love, loss and grief.

Ellis and Michael are best friends, growing up without mothers in Oxford in the 1970s. They share a love of cycling and travel, and, on a trip to France, their relationship becomes physical. A few years later, Annie enters the picture, with the trio soon becoming inseparable. But then Michael moves to London and disappears from Ellis and Annie's lives.

Years pass, and in 1996 the reader encounters a withdrawn Ellis living on his own and working nights at a car factory. The devastating events of the intervening years slowly come to light as Winman skilfully moves between characters and decades.

This book is all emotion, and unashamedly so, exploring themes such as the exuberance of youth and the desperation of unrequited love – and what lingers at the end is an overwhelming sense of sadness.

Tin Man may be a short novel, at just 195 pages, but it packs an enormous punch.

THEN SHE WAS GONE by Lisa Jewell, Century, £12.99 (ebook £7.99)

ELLIE MACK, 15, disappears without a trace. Ten years later, a body is found and her mother, Laurel, has a chance to rebuild her on-hold life. She meets a charismatic stranger in a cafe and is swept into an affair. But is Floyd all he seems – and why is his daughter, almost a carbon copy of Ellie?

Jewell builds a gripping novel around a maze of dark secrets, a tautly wound psychological thriller in which the suspense builds slowly. Her storytelling is immaculate, hopping between past and present, and in and out of different characters. It's a tough read at times, but Jewell always keeps everything moving.

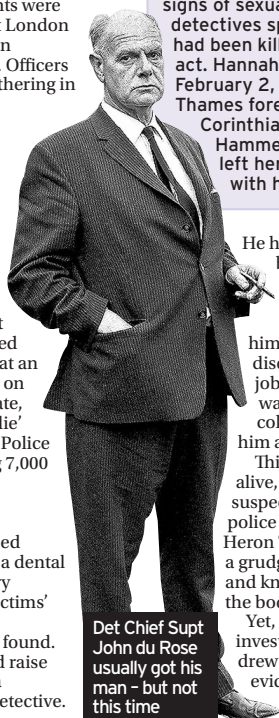

The intrigue never flags as she pushes towards a redemptive resolution.

An astute and emotionally charged read, riddled with creepiness. Fully recommended.

BEAUTY COUNTER

KATIE WRIGHT quizzes the experts about the three most common razor-free fuzz-fighting treatments

DREAMING of a holiday where you don't have to worry about shin stubble and bikini-line maintenance, but still wedded to razors and foam? Well, there is another way.

Several, in fact, and none of which involve excruciating trips to the salon. From simple wax strips to high-tech gadgets, DIY hair removal has come on leaps and bounds in recent years, meaning there's a method for every budget (and pain threshold), and you can forget about razors when you jet off on hols.

But which is the one for you? We asked the experts for their advice to help you find your ideal at-home hair-removal solution...

WAXING

"In general, everyone can do at-home waxing," says Veet's beauty expert Nichola Joss. "However, if you are prone to being very sensitive or have an existing skin condition, it's best to seek out professional advice for the best type of waxing or hair removal."

■ Which is better for beginners - wax strips or hot wax?

"I think it's more personal preference, but I find both are appropriate for beginners. Both are easy to use, effective and results driven, compared to shaving, epilating or laser - all of which can be aggressive and damaging to skin."

"With waxing, you can have smooth hair-free skin for up to six weeks, depending on the coarseness and density of your hair."

■ Does it hurt?

"It can be slightly uncomfortable, depending on the area of the body you are treating. The best way to minimise pain would be to completely prep the skin by cleansing, exfoliating and moisturising beforehand."

■ Is it expensive?

"Waxing is far more cost-effective and time-efficient to do at home than in the salon, and you are also far more in control of your treatment."

■ Any other tips for beginners?

Get beach ready with some DIY

"Make sure you have all your tools and products to hand. Read through the instructions completely and allocate enough time. And always remember to carry out a patch-test 24 hours before."

EPILATION

EPILATION devices feature a rotating head that catches and plucks hairs out one by one.

"Women with all skin types can use epilation as their method of hair removal," says GP and skin expert, Dr Anita Sturnham. "But people with more sensitive skin may prefer to epilate as there are a number of ways to ease the initial pain some may experience, which cannot be replicated when waxing."

■ Does it hurt?

"Epilating allows you to reach all areas of the skin easily with the stretch of one arm, so the other hand can be used to hold skin taught to ease the pain some experience as they first start to epilate. Some epilators can also be used in the bath or shower, which softens the hairs and desensitises the skin for a gentler epilation experience."

■ Why is it better than waxing?

"Waxing requires approximately 2mm of hair regrowth, which is inconvenient and can lead to women wanting to cover up during this awkward in-between stage. The Braun range captures hairs as short as a grain of sand (0.5mm)."

■ Is it expensive?

"While the purchase of an epilator is an initial expense, this should be seen as an investment purchase to last for countless hair-removal treatments. A recent survey by Braun found that by conducting hair-removal treatments at home, women in the UK can save up on average £567 per year."

■ Any other tips for beginners?

"Exfoliate first, to lift hairs that may be hiding under dry skin, avoiding the risk of ingrown hairs and ensuring every hair is captured. And don't apply products straight after."

IPL

IPL stands for Intense Pulsed Light. In terms of hair removal, a flash of light is absorbed by the pigment in a hair, which then 'zaps' the growing cells beneath it.

"We don't recommend it for very dark skin, or very light body hair," says Leah Richards, director of clinical affairs at SmoothSkin. "This is because very dark skin has a considerable amount of pigment and will absorb more light than the skin can handle, therefore it can potentially burn, discolour or scar your skin. Very light body hair is the opposite, as in this instance, there isn't enough pigment in the hair shaft, which IPL heavily relies on. We don't recommend that you use IPL over your tattoos, as it can burn and blister the skin."

■ How long does it last?

"One treatment won't last forever. You will need to keep treating the hairs every once in a while to avoid hair growth starting. Treat it once a week until you start seeing the desired results, and then top up when and if you need them."

■ Does it hurt?

"IPL doesn't hurt. Granted, you'll feel a slight sensation, perhaps a tingling feeling, but it won't be painful. However, the sensation varies from person to person."

■ Is it expensive?

"At first thought, IPL might seem like an expensive way to de-fuzz, but we've done the maths, and over time you can make a huge saving compared to other more conventional hair-removal methods. The average razor blade lasts just a month - if you include shaves, blades and foam, you could soon be spending around £8 per month. For a one-off payment of just £199, SmoothSkin Bare offers unlimited flashes so it will last a lifetime."

■ Any other tips for beginners?

"Always do a quick patch-test before getting started. This will help you get used to the sensation of IPL, as well as finding out if you have the skin tone and hair type of using."

Sachajuan Protective Hair Perfume - £40

SACHAJUAN says this perfume contains an extract from natural citrus oils that encapsulates odour molecules and breaks them down.

I found the fragrance heavy in floral and woody notes. The mist deterred odours all day long - even after slaving over a hot stove - and it left my hair soft and glossy. It may be the most expensive of the three, but you only need two spritzes for the fragrance to last all day.

Verdict: 3/5

Kerasilk Beautifying Hair Perfume - £22

THIS range of hair perfumes has four fragrances: Control, Repower, Colour and Reconstruct. I tried Repower, finding it zesty, with notes of freesia and lily that made my hair smell freshly washed. It required reapplications but, as the bottle could fit into my handbag, I didn't mind.

Verdict: 4/5

Ariana Grande Sweet Like Candy Hair Mist - £13

LIKE the star herself, Grande's fragrance is cutesy and sweet with a blend of pear, vanilla orchid and marshmallow fragrances. I found it had incredible staying-power - flip your tresses and it'll leave a scent in the air long after you leave a room - but it didn't add weight to my hair.

Verdict: 3/5

CELEBRITY WELLBEING

MODEL, FITNESS INSTRUCTOR AND MUM OF CALUM, ANGIE BEST, TELLS GABRIELLE FAGAN ABOUT HER SEVEN STEPS TO A FITTER, YOUNGER YOU

ANGIE BEST is still glamorous and strutting her stuff as a model at 64, but even she doesn't pull her punches when talking about ageing: "Getting older is an absolute b* and not for the faint-hearted! Your brain's still young, but your body is doing something alien. Sometimes I look in the mirror and I just don't recognise myself!"

But the years have been kind, with her appearing to be just a more mature and sophisticated version of the bubbly, blonde bombshell who was a fitness instructor, model and Playboy Bunny, when she met the late footballer, George Best in Los Angeles, in 1975, and found fame. Their son Calum is now 36.

Drawing on her 40-year career in health and fitness – she's coached celebrities from Sharon Stone to Daryl Hannah and toured with Cher as her personal trainer – Angie has devised her own winning strategy for staying fit and youthful.

"Most days I still feel in my fifties. Of course, we all have difficult days – sometimes I look in the mirror and feel 90 – but we can all improve our look and feel different. All it takes is a change of outlook and a little effort."

Here's Angie's guide to getting fit and looking young...

1. CHANGE YOUR ATTITUDE

"YOU'VE got to say to yourself, 'I'm going to improve my health and the way I look at life. Every day, tell yourself, 'This is the first day of the rest of my life and I'm going to make it positive and give my health priority.' That puts you on the path to working on yourself."

"Believe me, I know what that feels like. Coming back to the UK in 2005 after George died, because Calum needed me, he was struggling with his demons, was the toughest thing I've ever done."

"I'd been away for 30 years living happily in America, but I managed to recreate myself here, so now it's possible to look at life differently and change things if you're determined enough."

2. SHAKE YOUR STUFF

"IN my mind, the best anti-ageing thing in the world is exercise, because it promotes circulation, helps tone muscles and promotes endorphins in the brain, which boost your mood. I'd suggest a gym class and include weight-bearing exercises for your bones, and maybe some walking or gentle jogging. I teach at my gym, play tennis and ride my horse."

3. DRINK MORE WATER

"NONE of us drinks enough water. Every morning I start the day with a glass of room temperature water and fresh lemon juice."

"I drink water throughout the day and avoid alcohol (apart from the odd glass of champagne on special occasions) because it contains chemicals which dry out the skin. I regard it as a friend of wrinkles."

Simply the BEST you can be

Angie with George Best and their son Calum

4. STAY ORGANIC

"I'M an organic girl and try to avoid anything I think may have been sprayed, treated or processed. I also limit my intake of dairy and animal products, and stick to white meat – fish, turkey and chicken – and eat lots of fruit."

"For lunch, my largest meal of the day, I'll have potatoes, brown rice or beans and vegetables. In the evening, I'll have protein such as fish or white meat, chickpeas and avocado. I'm 5' 7" and weight 8st 6lbs – that's only about five pounds more than when I was young."

5. KEEP IT REAL

"I HAD a face lift at 44, but I've had nothing since apart from Botox between my eyes, which got rid of a ridiculous frown line. I won't touch filler – it doesn't work. I have facials regularly to refresh my skin."

"I refuse to let people airbrush or change photos of me to make me look younger than I am. That's not fair on the women who see them, and I believe you've got to keep it real as you age and not end up with some artificial 'look'."

"Be prepared to ignore so-called 'rules' about how you should look and what you should wear at a certain age."

"You don't have to change your style. I still wear my hair long and look for clothes I love rather than age-appropriate ones."

"I've just modelled some great outfits for the Silver Line Edit collection for JD Williams."

Cher is one of Angie's celebrity clients

6. STAY BUSY, STAY SOCIABLE

"GET out as much as you can and talk to people and join groups if you can – talking to people is energising and often helps you realise how lucky you are. I don't do lonely because I'm always busy with my gym business, events, and my family. My partner of 19 years is my rock (former hockey player, Mark Miller) and we work together."

"Family is key of course. My son, Calum and I are very close and I'm thrilled. He lost his dad and as far as he's concerned,

Angie and son Calum, above, are very close

"I'm all he's got. He holds on to me with a tight grip, bless him. He's in a very good place these days and it makes me so happy seeing him."

"He's wonderful to me, keeps me up to date by telling me about everything modern and young that's going on and also gives me advice on what to wear. He'll buy clothes for me that he thinks I'll like."

7. HAVE NO REGRETS

"IF you have regrets then you're going to be sad and that's going to age you quicker than anything in the world. I've got no regrets about any of my choices because everything I've done has brought me where I am today, and I'm a very lucky girl."

"I learnt so much from working for Cher in LA, she's still a friend, and her brilliant piece of advice was, 'When things get tough, put your knickers on and get on with it.'"

DOCTOR'S NOTE

FAST-TRACK surgery to treat pancreatic cancer increases its success rate by more than a fifth, saving the NHS £3,200 per patient, research has found.

The University Hospitals Birmingham pilot cut the average time to surgery from two months to just over two weeks.

Savings to the NHS of £3,200 per patient were made by cutting out the treatment for the symptom of jaundice before surgery, as well as reducing complications and hospital readmissions after surgery.

FOOD & DRINK

FRESH seafood is on the menu in Gennaro Contaldo's autobiographical cookbook Passione. But if you're new to cooking with crab, have no fear...

"If you find it difficult to extract the crab meat from its shell, ask your fishmonger to do it for you," writes Gennaro.

INGREDIENTS:

(Serves 4)

2 large fresh crabs (ask your fishmonger to prepare for you and reserve the shells)
175ml extra virgin olive oil
12 fresh raw king prawns, shell on 4 garlic cloves, sliced lengthways
2 red chillies, sliced lengthways into strips
2 handfuls of fresh parsley leaves
250ml white wine
1 lemon, cut into quarters, to serve

Slices of bread, to serve
Salt

METHOD:

1. Heat the olive oil in a large frying pan, add the prawns and cook for one minute over a high heat. Turn them over and cook the other side for another minute.

2. Add the garlic, chillies and crab chunks, season with salt, then reduce the heat and cook for two minutes with the lid on.
3. Add the parsley, increase the heat and pour in the wine and any reserved juices from the crab. Bubble until evaporated, then serve immediately, with lemon quarters and lots of bread to mop up the juices.

Tired? The minute I walk inside the kitchen I feel 25

WOULD you like to taste some pasta?" Just two minutes after meeting Gennaro Contaldo at one of the London branches of Jamie's Italian, he's already being the perfect host.

As it's lunchtime, and yes, I am quite hungry, I gratefully accept, and he quickly dispatches a waiter with instructions to ask chef Valentino for "one pasta special of the day", adding in that famous Italian lilt: "Ees for Gennaro".

The bubbly 68-year-old is universally loved by all the chefs he trains at Jamie's Italian restaurants around the globe, and most of all by his protégé, Jamie himself, who calls Gennaro his 'London dad'. The feeling is mutual.

"Oh my God, does Jamie do more than me, he goes round and round and round. He's always in touch. At the end of the day, we are cooks, more than anything else. We love cooking."

It's this passion for cooking and good food that Gennaro extols in his cookbook Passione ("kind of my biography"), named after the restaurant he ran in London in the early Noughties.

First published in 2003 – "that book put me on the map" – it's now been lovingly updated with stories and photos from Gennaro's childhood growing up on Italy's Amalfi Coast.

"I realised how beautiful it was when I left it. After two, maybe three years, I went back and when I reached my village [Minori], everything was ever so small and it was strange," says the chef, who first left home for England as a young man of 20.

KATE WHITING TALKS TO JAMIE OLIVER'S 'LONDON DAD' WHO HAS JUST REPUBLISHED HIS AUTOBIOGRAPHICAL COOKBOOK, GENNARO'S PASSIONE

"I didn't realise it was me that had grown up by being surrounded by London. You live in a place where the mountains are your back garden, the sea is your swimming pool, the village is your playground, then you come to London and everything – wow!

"I missed so much the sea, the smell of the herb. Sometimes, I used to have a day off and go back to the sea, maybe South-end. I always wanted to put my hands inside, I knew the sea would touch the shore of my hometown."

In the books, he calls it a "free-range" childhood. The family had no fridge, so everything had to be fresh and they ate with the seasons. His father, a linen merchant, brought animals home he'd been given as payment by local farmers and did most of the cooking, while his mother sent him out to collect herbs from the mountains, which sparked a lifelong love of foraging.

"Imagine, come 12 o'clock, you go home through the small alleyways and all the balconies are open and you can hear the crockery and you can smell everything and you can pinpoint... fresh pasta with beans, grilled fish, cooked meat... Nothing came from far away, everything in season."

The pasta special arrives – squid-like calamari with a pesto of roasted red peppers, garlic and chilli ("spice prolongs life"), with buffalo ricotta – and it's the best thing I've ever tasted.

"It's kind of al dente, but it's a little bit chewy because it's fresh. Al dente means you chew longer, so you taste it and digest it better. You want to keep that flavour in your mouth longer, it's like a glass of wine, it's smooth."

When he first arrived in London, Gennaro worked as a kitchen porter for a hospital, to get a permit, and eventually ended up at his good friend Antonio Carluccio's Neal Street Restaurant, where he met and mentored Jamie Oliver, before branching out on his own and opening Passione.

He left the restaurant three years before it closed in 2009, a victim of the recession, to collaborate with Jamie on the Jamie's Italian chain.

"He is [like a son], he's got exactly the same love, and cares and respects food and people."

"I look up to him. My God, he can do it. And we film quite a lot, me and Jamie, we film a new programme which will come out next year."

He has five of his own children, two with his current partner, and three from his previous marriage, and he's not about to hang up his apron anytime soon.

"This is what's keeping me alive," he says earnestly. "I have days when I think I'm too tired, but the minute I walk inside the kitchen, I feel 25. I believe another person like me is Jamie, he's running around... to give lots of love to the world."

"And for me to come in the restaurant, and have a picture together with a young boy who's been waiting months to see you, you give them such love and joy and you show them how to do something, you transfer a little tiny gene to him and he will find the same love and passion."

■ Gennaro's Passione: The Classic Italian Cookery Book by Gennaro Contaldo is published by Pavilion, priced £20.

I WAS so happy the other day when I converted a pal from pinot grigio to another white wine. Happy is an understatement; it is one of my life's missions to widen the horizons of pinot grigio drinkers who find themselves stuck in a comfort zone.

The victorious wine was from Slovenia and is one of two new wines released by puklavec & friends. The Furmint 2015 (RRP £9.99, but £7.99 from August 9 to September 5, Waitrose, 13.5% abv) and its sister wine is puklavec & friends Sauvignon Blanc / Pinot Grigio 2016 (RRP £8.79, and £6.59 across the same dates, Waitrose, 12.5% abv).

RAISE A GLASS

WITH JANE CLARE

I love that the front of both wines emphasise that the grapes were handpicked – the furmint on September 28 and October 2. Call me a geek, but that puts me right in the hills of Jerusalem in eastern Slovenia when people would have been scurrying around on the vineyard terraces. Ah, but enough of the poetic reflection, what of the wine. It was a little shy releasing its aromas, but a couple of good swirls revealed floral notes, lemon, melon and a touch of lychee; the flavours much the same with a nice acidity.

The aromas of the sauvignon blanc and pinot grigio blend (yes, my pal liked that too) are zesty, with huddles of elderflower and a dabble with tropical fruit. In the mouth the citrus pings and it has a decent, mouth-watering length.

Also in my glass... last Friday it was absolutely pouring down. I thought heck, where has the summer gone? I wanted to remember sunshine, cloudless skies and breezes willowing with aromas of roses and blossom. Then I remembered The Society's Exhibition English Sparkling Wine NV (£21, 12% abv) and I thought if the summer won't come to me, I'll remember it in a glass of sparkling wine from the sunny fields of Sussex. This wine is created for The Wine Society (thewinesociety.com) by Ridgeview which uses the classic champagne grapes chardonnay, pinot noir and pinot meunier and the traditional sparkling winemaking method as followed by champagne makers. This wine has scrunchy green apples on the nose... but what's this... after a while it opens up into squishy ripe red apples, all encased in a buttery biscuit base.

■ I ran a wine tasting last night and my red wine was Ring Bolt Cabernet Sauvignon 2014 (RRP £12.99, 14.5% abv). It was awarded this year's International Wine Challenge Great Value Red Under £15 and the IWC Great Value Champion Red. I hunted for this Australian wine in my local Tesco and found it on the top shelf, minding its own business, with no indication of the top awards it has picked up.

My little gathering loved it and some of them are off to buy it pretty quickly so you've been warned. The wine hails from the Margaret River region and had fresh overtures of plums and cherries, with layers of mocha and chocolate from oak aging, together with velvety tannins. I hid a glass for when my work was done. What a treat.

INGREDIENTS:

(Serves 2-4)
2 baby chickens (poussins), boned (ask your butcher to do this for you)
6tbsp olive oil
Salt and freshly ground black pepper

For the filling:

2 garlic cloves, peeled
2tbsp capers
1tsp sea salt
2tsp extra virgin olive oil
Needles from 2 sprigs of fresh rosemary
A handful of chopped fresh parsley

Freshly ground black pepper

For the sauce:

2 garlic cloves, peeled
Needles from 2 sprigs of fresh
rosemary
120ml white wine
120ml cider vinegar
½ tsp sugar
1tbsp capers
Scattering of fresh parsley, to

METHOD:

1. First make the filling by placing all the ingredients in a mortar and pounding them with a pestle until you obtain a pulp.

2. Open up each baby chicken like a butterfly and place skin-side down on a chopping board. Spread the filling evenly over the flesh side, then fold the poussin back over and secure the opening with wooden toothpicks,
weaving them in and out.
Season all over with salt and pepper. Heat the olive oil in a large frying pan, add the chickens, then reduce the heat slightly and cook until golden brown on all sides. Cover the pan and cook gently for about 20 minutes, until the chickens are cooked through.

3. Meanwhile, make the sauce. Place the garlic and rosemary in a mortar and

Snap happy holidays

Make the most of your summer break photos with these five fantastic apps

THE season of poolside portraits and sunset snaps is upon us, and soon Instagram will be awash with more summer holiday photos than you can shake a selfie stick at.

But you don't want to bore your followers with images just anyone could take, do you? No, you want to stand out from the crowd, do something special, and show your friends that your holiday is better than their holiday.

You've got a cracking camera in your phone, so why not spend that little bit more time planning and polishing the pics you take on the beach this year to make them worthy of someone else's attention?

Here are five apps to help you make the most of your holiday photos.

PHOTOFOX
(iOS, free with in-app purchases)

■ THEY SAY: Unleash your creativity and start transforming photos into artistic masterpieces.
■ WE SAY: Photofox is the follow up to the popular Enlight photo editing app, and it brings a full-featured image editor to your iPhone. It can do almost anything a desktop app can do, and is superbly designed and intuitive.

It is somewhat controversial, as it introduces subscription pricing – you can pay £2.29 a month or £17.49 a year to use all the app's features, or just pay a one-time £38.88 to unlock the full version forever.

That might seem like a lot, but the people who sweat tears over the code to make apps this good are not doing it for free, are they?

Everybody needs to get paid.

TOUCHNOTE
(iOS and Android, free with in-app purchases.)

■ THEY SAY: Turn your photos into thoughtful postcards

Masterpiece: An image transformed by the Photofox app

the shop, buy a postcard, find a pen, buy a stamp, then find a postbox to send a holiday memory back home?

TouchNote does all that for you without you having to move anything but your finger on the touch screen.

Bonus feature: You're sending your own images of your actual holiday instead of one taken by a local snapper in 1978.

TOUCHRETOUCH
(iOS, £1.99)

■ THEY SAY: TouchRetouch is an app that offers you and send them to the people who matter most.

■ WE SAY: Remember when you used to have to get off your sun lounger, pop down all the tools you need to efficiently remove unwanted content from your iPhone photos.

■ WE SAY: It's annoying, isn't it? There's the perfect photo of you, gracefully skipping over the shore break and into the shimmering azure ocean, but the whole thing is spoiled by the fat, bald fella who wandered into shot at the last minute, splashing about like a walrus.

Fear not, TouchRetouch will have him gone within seconds, as if he was never even there.

The app is a one-trick pony, but does that one trick very well – you can, within reason, remove unwanted elements from images, leaving you with just the bits you like. Usually you, looking good.

PHOTOPILLS
(iOS and Android, £9.99)

■ THEY SAY: Unlock your creative potential! Discover how to easily turn any Sun, Moon and Milky Way scene you imagine into a real picture... and start shooting truly legendary photos every time you pick up the camera!

■ WE SAY: I don't really know what 'legendary photos' are, but PhotoPills is all about timing – helping you to be in the right place at the right time, to get the best shot possible.

You want the Sun to be just dipping behind the corner of those mountains? Or the Moon to just be clipping the bell tower of the city's cathedral? PhotoPills will tell you where to be, and more importantly when to be there, to be sure to get the image you want.

PhotoPills will tell you where to be, and more importantly when to be there, to be sure to get the image you want.

FILMBORN
(iOS, free with in-app purchases)

■ THEY SAY: Hold the past, present, and future of photography in the palm of your hand.

■ WE SAY: Filmborn is next-level photo filters – it accurately reproduces what your digital images would look like had you captured them using some of the most popular film from the golden age of analogue photography.

Not only that, but it's also a photography tutor that explains how to get the best from each film type.

If you want to hone your snapping skills, and take photos that look and feel like they were captured on film, focus on this app and you'll be making better, and better looking, photos in no time.

MS Paint has been around since 1985

MS PAINT REACHES THE END

ONE of the most illustrious pieces of software ever shipped appears to have enjoyed some kind of reprieve after being declared dead.

Microsoft revealed earlier this week that its iconic Paint programme was to be "deprecated" in the next version of Windows, which means it is "no longer being developed and may be removed from future releases." Which more or less means it's dead.

However, Microsoft later confirmed that, while Paint is being removed from Windows, it will live on as a free legacy download from the Windows App Store. Not quite alive, then, but not quite dead either.

It seems Microsoft, taken aback by the outpouring of love for Paint after its initial announcement, has tried to spin its removal from Windows as a change of heart.

But essentially, if it's not on your PC by default, are you really going to take the time and the trouble to go and download it? Also, if your computer is a work device, you probably won't be able to, anyway.

Paint has been part of Windows from the stars, shipping as part of the OS since version 1.0 in 1985.

It was one of the first graphic creation tools, but has always been rather limited in its scope, and it has long since been superseded by better and more capable apps.

DRONE ON ABOUT REGULATIONS

THE government has revealed plans to regulate the use of drones – small unmanned aerial vehicles often fitted with cameras – and create a database of drone owners.

In plans largely applauded by both drone makers and users, owners will have to gain a licence to fly, which will require registering online and taking a test to make sure rules about where and when drones can be flown are understood. All drones that weigh more than 250g will be subject to the regulations – a weight arrived at after studying new research into how heavy a drone has to be before it can do damage to airplanes and helicopters.

The regulations are the result of a public consultation that was carried out earlier this year. No time scale has been revealed about when the new rules will come into force.

APP OF THE WEEK

SARAHAH
(iOS AND ANDROID, FREE)

SARAHAH is topping the charts in App Stores around the world, which is odd for an obscure messaging app with little to no promotion made by Saudi Arabian developer Zain al-Abidin Tawfiq.

Sarahah means honesty or openness in Arabic, and that's exactly what Sarahah the app and website tries to promote.

Its main goal, says the developer, is to allow employers and friends to provide honest feedback to individuals – and it's all done anonymously.

But there are concerns – the anonymity is somewhat appealing to those with less than kind, or at least constructively unkind, things to say.

There have been some suggestions it's being used to bully some users, and we don't need any more of that, do we?

The developer is apparently working to find a solution to that problem, in the hope his app can continue to ride high in the charts.

YOUR HOME

Putting it in neutral

Tranquil tints are the key ingredients for stylish, stress-busting schemes that soothe your soul

If you're craving an escape from the heat and stresses of the day, pale and interesting rooms could be the answer. A neutral palette is not only fashionable but visually restful.

"We believe in putting together a relaxed and comfortable home that reflects your own particular lifestyle and personality, and the quest to create a happy home – not a show home – is paramount," explains stylist Atlanta Bartlett, who, along with her husband Dave Coote, is co-author of Pale & Interesting, a guide to decorating with a muted palette of subtle shades, for harmonious, soothing interiors.

"A laid-back relaxed look stems from an easy-going attitude and is conjured with neutral tones and clever use of contrast. Then make it your own by pairing functional with decorative, elegant with casual, hand-made with man-made, and old with new."

Take your pick from a sophisticated 'Chic White' scheme or 'Shades of Pale', a fresh interpretation of rustic...

Pale Pampelune chair, natural finish, £100, available from PIB

CHIC WHITE

"This simple way of decorating – with a predominantly white palette – creates spaces that feel calm, spacious and uncluttered," says Atlanta.

"When it comes to furniture and accessories, less is definitely more. Stick to one or two key pieces and allow them plenty of space to breathe so they can speak for themselves.

"Softening the look with colour for accents and focal points. Chalky pastels, off-whites, greys and neutrals will add just the right amount, without being overbearing or fussy. Alternatively, even one bright blue cushion in an all-white scheme will offer a welcome place to rest your eye."

DECOR TIP: In general, smooth, shiny or silky surfaces – such as mirror, lacquer or satin – create a more formal environment. If you have a family and pets, use washable wall paints, opt for painted floorboards rather than carpets, and plenty of easy-care loose covers, so the space is practical as well as beautiful.

SHADES OF PALE

This is all about a gentle, pared-back, country-style interior, which celebrates natural textures and upcycling.

Grey and white is a calming colour combination, and it doesn't have to feel cold or sombre. The addition of warm tones with the wooden bench and a row of bamboo stools ensures this elegant room is also inviting

TAKE THE ROUGH WITH THE SMOOTH

"Ensure your home has depth and interest by exploring the use of texture and form," advises Atlanta. "Take inspiration from nature's tones and combine rough with smooth, geometric with organic, and light with dark."

"Recycling and reusing are essential to the Pale & Interesting ethos. Not only do they lighten the load on the world's natural resources, but they're also easy on your pocket and will help you to create an individual one-off style that cannot be bought on the high street."

"Furniture and accessories that show signs of wear-and-tear are like dear old friends – full of warmth and character. Think of textures like shades on a paint palette and combine surfaces as you would colours. Bear in mind that heavier, coarser ones, like wood, stone or linen, lend themselves to a more relaxed, rustic look."

■ PALE & Interesting by Atlanta Bartlett & Dave Coote, photography by Polly Wreford, is published by Ryland Peters & Small, priced £19.99. Available to readers for the special price of £14.99 (inc p&p). Call Macmillan Direct on 01256 302 699 and quote ref LC3.

A Victorian button-back chair looks fresh and modern with the addition of a simple paper lampshade and a streamlined mirror.

The clever design of this bathroom maximises space by combining the structure of the cast-concrete bath with an open shower

PROPERTY TALK

With Nigel Lewis

Rush Grove House is one of the few properties in London with its own lake, pictured inset

THE £3.25M TURNER PRIZE

Theatre and film director Mike Leigh is known for his bleak and angst-ridden dramatic productions including Abigail's Party on TV and Vera Drake on film.

But this eye-catching property starred in one of his more genteel efforts, 2014's biopic Mr Turner. It's Leigh's version of 19th century painter JMW Turner's life, who in the film is played by Timothy Spall.

Rush Grove House was bought by property developer Gary Halkyard in 2012. But half way through doing up the run-down Georgian gem, Mike Leigh decided the property would be perfect to portray the gallery that Turner built for himself in Harley Street, central London.

In real life Rush Grove House is in the capital's south-eastern suburb of Woolwich and has five bedrooms and four reception rooms.

Gary's renovation is complete including the restoration of its extraordinary wooden floors, and the addition of a show-stopping chandelier in the main hallway and beautiful restoration of its wood-and-gilt balustrade.

The property has an unusual distinction too. It is one of only six homes in London with their own lake, in its case Mulgrove Pond. The list includes several illustrious addresses, including Buckingham Palace.

The property is being sold direct by the developer on the property's website for £3.25 million after spells being sold by several estate agents.

The property will appeal to City types. When Crossrail opens next year, the house will be just 28 minutes from the Square Mile via the new station being built at Woolwich Arsenal. www.rushgrove.london/rush-grove-house.php

Live-in Legend

Singer John and his model wife Chrissy Tiegan's former LA home hits the market

The hit ballad All of Me stormed the pop charts in 2013, reaching No 1 in the US and enjoying a phenomenal 46 weeks in the UK Top 40. It was written and performed by singer-songwriter John Legend, who at the time had already enjoyed huge success working with Kanye West, Jay-Z and Alicia Keys.

Legend's home at the time was in the Hollywood Hills at 3023 Longdale

Lane, and although he has sold it since, it recently returned to the market and is now on offer for just under $2.5 million.

John and his wife, the model Chrissy Tiegan, lived at the property between 2007 and 2014, remodelling it to create a contemporary indoor-outdoor living space.

The 2,200 sq ft property has three bedrooms, three bathrooms and a stunning kitchen. Outside, there is a pool, a hot tub, gardens and an outdoor bathing area. John, who has 10 Grammy awards to his name, wrote All of Me as a tribute to his soon-to-be wife, Chrissy, a Sports Illustrated swimsuit model.

The couple have since moved to a $14.1 million mansion in LA, with their baby daughter Luna.

Their former house is for sale at $2,495,000 through Heather Boyd at Hilton & Hyland (00 1 31 278 3311).

Author Michael Bond's 1950s books about a Peruvian bear who arrives at Paddington Station seeking marmalade sandwiches and somewhere to live proved a world-wide hit.

His Paddington stories were translated into 30 languages and sold tens of millions of copies across the world, while the famous felt-hat and duffel coat-wearing stuffed toy soon became a children's favourite.

First published in 1956 more than 20 books were written by Bond, the most recent in 2014. The author died in June this year aged 91, just before a second Hollywood film featuring his bear is due to be released.

RENT FILM STAR BEAR'S DEN

In 2014 Paddington, pictured inset, got his first outing on the silver screen, although many will remember him for the three TV series he appeared in during the 1970s, late 1980s and 1990s, two of which featured the crumbly-voiced words of actor Michael Hordern.

The bear's London home for both movies is on a pretty street in the capital's Primrose Hill area called Chalcot Crescent - aka Windsor Gardens in the films - picked for its brightly-coloured terraced houses.

You can now rent a one-bedroom apartment on the first floor of the property offering amazing views of Paddington's street.

It's currently available through agent Knight Frank (020 3815 3350) for £530 a week.

HOUSE HOSTED LITERARY STARS

Most people haven't heard of William Barnes, a colourful Dorset academic and poet born in 1801. But if you're into poetry then you'll know his friends.

Barnes worked for the Church of England and lived in a large rectory where a litany of famous names passed through, including poets who were drawn to his eccentric personality and creative gifts.

Most famously this included Tess of the d'Urbervilles novelist Thomas Hardy, who Barnes met while the two trained as architects. They became lifelong friends, despite the 40-year age gap between them.

Others drawn to the charismatic

Old Came Rectory

Barnes included a string of the mid-19th century's literati including Alfred Lord Tennyson. Even after Barnes' death, the property still attracted writing talent.

Old Came Rectory was rented by First World War poet Siegfried Sassoon during the 1920s to which he invited fellow war poet Edmund Blunden and T.E. Lawrence - better known as Lawrence of Arabia - for visits. The five-bedroom property is two miles outside Dorchester and was built in 1804. The remains of the original basket maker's cottage it replaced are to be found in the basement.

It has lime rendered walls, a thatched roof and flagstone floors but has undergone a substantial renovation by the current owner, who has also been helping a local historian write a book about the property.

It is for sale at £1.35 million. For more information contact Jackson Stop-Staff on 01305 262123.

OWN YOUR OWN HEBRIDEAN ISLE

A Scottish private island with links to the founding of Australia is for sale.

Called Ulva Island, it's the second largest isle within the Inner Hebrides and is 7.5 miles long and 2.5 miles wide. It comes with a large house, pictured as well as a church, restaurants, tea rooms and eight other homes ranging from bothies to a sporting lodge, plus farm buildings.

Ulva also has two moorings for boats as the area is popular with yachties, but the island is most treasured by twitches and sea life enthusiasts; it is home to 123 different bird species, including the white-tailed sea eagle, and its coast is alive with Minke whales, porpoises and dolphins.

Authors Sir Walter Scott and Beatrix Potter loved visiting the isle. It was also home to the 'father of Australia' Major General Lachlan MacQuarrie, who was born on the island in 1810.

Ulva Island is currently for sale at offers over £4.25m. Knight Frank, 0131 222 9600.

YOUR GARDEN

With Diarmuid Gavin

Monty Don was on my local radio station recently. He was in town to deliver an enthusiastic talk to his gardening disciples – of which there are many.

A listener called in with a question about the potential damage caused by slug pellets on our hedgehog population.

His answer was swift and absolutely right – our hedgehog numbers are depleting at an alarming rate. They take refuge in gardens and we should do all we can to protect and encourage them.

What's more they'll feed on the slugs. No garden plant, he said, is worth the life of a hedgehog. Hear hear!

In this chemical-oriented age, it is far better to work with nature and encourage sympathetic ecosystems which allow flora and fauna to thrive in harmony.

An alternative to using insecticides is to encourage beneficial insects to your garden to do the work for you.

Aphids are the number one pest in the garden at the moment.

Not only does their sap sucking distort foliage, but they excrete sticky honeydew. This sticky sugary substance soon becomes covered in mould, creating unsightly black blotches on leaves.

Hosing them off or even wiping them off is one way of managing them but it also helps to encourage predators who will eat them. Enter our favourite beetle – the ladybird.

Our first introduction is probably as schoolchildren, reading the Ladybird books.

Easily identified with black spots on a red background, it's considered good luck when one lands on you – and they don't bite, which helps their popularity.

The "lady" is thought to refer to the Virgin Mary – legend has it that farmers in bygone eras were plagued with pests eating their crop until these beetles arrived and rescued the situation.

There are 46 different species in Attracting the ladies

The ladybird is nature's number-one weapon against aphids... so invite some to your patch

Chives

Britain, with variations such as yellow and orange backgrounds, or the spots varying in quantity and colour.

Ladybirds have an unsurpassed appetite for aphids, munching up to 50 a day or 5,000 during their lives.

They will also eat mites, thrips, scale insects and whiteflies. The larvae of ladybirds will also eat their own body weight in aphids every day. You can buy ladybirds from green garden suppliers for release in your garden or greenhouse. These will cost around £20 for 25 adults.

They should be released at twilight, temperatures need to be above 10°C and free them near an aphid-infested plant.

If the ladybirds don't find food quickly they will fly off to your neighbour's garden and feast on their aphids.

A less expensive route is to grow some plants that ladybirds like.

They love herbs such as mint, chives, coriander, fennel and dill, and flat-topped flowers such as yarrow.

Include calendula, statice, alyssum

and cosmos in your flower beds.

Common "weeds" such as dandelions and clover also tickle their tastebuds so you can relax the next time the lawn sprouts a few of these and view them as wildlife-friendly.

Ladybirds need places to hibernate during the winter.

They naturally overwinter in crevices of bark on trees and in piles of leaf litter. You can create your own ladybird house by using a simple wooden box and adding bits of bark and leaf litter.

Alternatively, construct a wildlife wall – this is made from layers of brick or tile and wood against a wall with some corrugated cardboard included in the layers for ladybirds to lay eggs.

Now's the time to reap the harvest

■ Plenty to harvest now – courgettes, before they turn to marrows, as well as second earlies and main crop potatoes, if the foliage is going yellow. French and runner beans can be cropped regularly, and onions, shallots and garlic are ready to dig up when foliage becomes yellow and flops over.

■ Spot-treat lawn weeds or, if possible, pull out by hand.

■ Check for cabbage white butterfly eggs and remove. Do the same with blackfly on broad beans and aphids everywhere.

■ Cut back perennials which are finished or those that will give a second flush, such as hardy geraniums. Dead-head bedding plants and perennials.

■ Rambling and climbing roses can look messy with lots of brown, faded flowers – you can prune them now unless they are repeat flowering. If lavender is going over, trim now to prevent it becoming leggy.

■ Going on holiday? Move pots to shady positions and ask a neighbour to water them.

■ Prevent disease by removing rose leaves with black spot from the ground, and fallen diseased apples or pears.

■ If you're growing fruit in containers, give them a high potash liquid feed.

Cosmos

Or make a log pile using a few branches, logs and twigs in an out-of-the way area where they won't be disturbed.

Even just leaving an area unmown or perennials not cut down for the winter provides a good hideaway for insects.

It's also a great excuse for some lazy gardening days and explaining why your garden isn't perfectly neat.

Well, we could all do with a day off!

ASK DIARMUID

Q My problem is my bird bath, which I fill with clean water every other day, but in summer, when it's hot, it goes green and smells.

I bleach and scrub it, then put clean water in.

I've tried putting brass coins in it, but that doesn't work.

And it doesn't help that some birds have a drink, then turn around and poo in the bath! Thank you for your advice.

Mrs Forster

Replace bird bath water every other day

A You're right to be concerned about keeping the water clean. Any stagnant water soon develops algae, and bird droppings are a quick way to spread disease.

The Royal Society for the Protection of Birds recommends doing exactly what you are practising - replacing the water every other day and using dilute bleach or detergent to keep it clean, making sure to rinse properly before refilling.

For a chemical-free approach, vinegar also makes a good cleaner.

PLANT OF THE WEEK

LOBELIA HADSPEN PURPLE

Hanging baskets and containers the length and breadth of Britain are full of trailing blue lobelia - it's a firm favourite with gardeners.

But let me introduce you to another lobelia - Hadspen Purple. It shares the classic lobelia flower shape.

All lobelia flowers have two lips - usually an upper lip with two lobes, with the bottom lip divided into three lobes.

Unlike the bedding lobelia, this variety is hardy. It has beautiful rich purple flowers which will last through to the autumn. While it likes to be in sun, it can manage partial shade but it doesn't like to dry out. Plant in moist conditions such as slightly boggy soil.

By Patrick James

The Discovery Sport is yet another clever variation on established theme from JLR, a company playing a blinder across the world with both the Jaguar and Land Rover brands.

The 'mini-Discovery', an upgrade and improvement on the old Freelander, offers the luxury of a Range Rover, mostly, but at a cheaper price, plus seven-seat practicality and the legendary off-road capability – and if you thought the various towing and traction aids were cosmetic extras, think again.

Last year in Switzerland the Discovery Sport towed three luxury train carriages with a combined weight of more than 100 tonnes along a railway track. This saw the vehicle pulling what is effectively the same weight as a Boeing-757.

Not only that, it looks great, a world away from previous boxy designs and looks a real compact SUV for the 21st century. Add to this the latest two-litre diesel Ingenium engine and you have almost the complete package

Sleek and stylish, for an SUV, it has a more rounded, slippery shape than previous models, while the privacy glass, unique daytime LEDs running light and 20-inch 'AeroViper' alloys on this all-black model attracted plenty of attention.

This range topper will set you back £46,500, not to mention a further £10,000 worth of goodies, but the base model still delivers plenty at a price of just over £28,000.

That model drives the front wheels only but is still well appointed and offers decent economy and CO2 emissions.

It is currently Land Rover's fastest-selling vehicle, with more than 200,000 units sold globally since its introduction in 2014.

The interior is luxuriously appointed on this model with soft touch finish and brushed aluminium trim, plus some nice red metal inserts neatly offsetting the black finish and full-length panoramic glass roof.

The leather upholstery is classy with neat stitching and the electrically operated seats are either heated or cooled, depending on the weather:

The centrepiece is a 10-inch

AT A GLANCE

- Model: Land Rover Discovery Sport TD4 HSE Luxury Dynamic
- Price: £46,510
- Mechanical: 180ps, 1,999cc, 4cyl diesel engine driving four wheels via nine-speed automatic gearbox
- Max speed: 117mph
- 0-62mph: 8.4 seconds
- Combined mpg: 53.3
- Insurance group: 38
- CO2 emissions: 139g/km
- BiK rating: 29%
- Warranty: 3 years/unlimited miles

touchscreen familiar on JLR models which controls sound system, navigation and connectivity via phone, apps or Wi-Fi. It feels a plush and luxurious place to be, particularly this range topper with a full complement of creature comforts.

The interior feels light and roomy with the front five seats in place. The rearmost pair would only be suitable for kids, with access via the sliding middle row of seats. The pop up and down with the click of a button in the boot.

All passengers have access to heating controls and for range-toppers video entertainment is built into the headrests.

Otherwise with the rearmost pair folded, boot space is plentiful and there are adjustable lashing points to keep cargo secure. There also other storage bins and pockets in the rest of the cabin.

The diesel is a refined beast, with little evidence of clatter and the 180ps of power gives plenty of acceleration, and obviously torque – as witnessed by the pulling a train bit.

Economy is decent for such a heavy car with a claimed 53.3mpg and 139g/km of CO2.

Mated to a slick, nine-speed automatic gearbox, drivers can select standard drive mode or sport and use the paddles for a more engaging drive.

One of the most impressive points for me was the handling. For an SUV sitting high off the ground it felt remarkably stable when cornering while the ride was comfortable, if slightly on the firm side.

Take it offroad and the Terrain Response system can be selected to tackle sand, mud, gravel and snow – but everyone knows a Land Rover can go virtually anywhere, don't they?

It is also packed with safety kit including air bags for all passengers to gain it the EuroNCAP five star rating.

Youngsters are put through their paces at Harlow Rugby Club's open day

Rugby club's open day proves big hit with youngsters

HARLOW Rugby Club, in their new home at Latton Park, hosted a free open day in a bid to give as many local youngsters as possible the chance to play mini rugby.

The event proved a resounding success, with more than 250 coming along to join in – and around half of those new to rugby.

The day started with youngsters split into their respective age groups, and enjoying sessions involving running skills, passing, catching and tagging.

For the older children there was tackle practice, and all participants left with a big smile on their faces plus a certificate.

Volunteers from across the club helped organise the open day and make it such a resounding success.

This is the sixth year Harlow have run this event, which was originally designed to get youngsters into the club's entry level U7 team, but now attracts players from right across the minis section.

Harlow return to minis training on September 3 from 10.30am to midday, with youngsters encouraged to come and try, with the first few sessions free.

Rain beaten but game lost

SUCH is the tightness of the Shepherd Neame Essex League Division One that Harlow are eighth in the table, 11 points off relegation but still only 21 points off promotion.

Harlow's match against Belhus was the only game to survive the weather, and it didn't prove a productive day for them.

They won the toss and elected to field. Belhus started well before the first wicket fell off the bowling of Lewis Aldred, with opener Matt Doran dismissed with the score on 77.

Belhus continued to score steadily, and it wasn't until they reached 184 before number two batsman Joe Joyce went on 97, run out just short of his century.

Wickets then fell at regular intervals, with Belhus finishing on 235 from their allocated 50 overs.

Pick of the Harlow bowlers was Mustanser Meraj with figures of 51-4 from 10 overs.

Replying, Harlow started steady with the wicket of Hafiz Yawar (26) falling with the score on 59.

That was as good as it got for Harlow, as they were bowled out for 122 in just 32.2 overs.

Apart from Alan Jones (24), skipper Rehman Ahmed (23) and Nicky Baxter (23no) no one else made double figures.

Vamshi Lingala took 4-23, Matt Doran 4-19 and Joe Joyce 2-15.

This Saturday Harlow travel to Harold Wood.

Runners are sun chasers

HARLOW Running Club had six members at the midweek Chase the Sun 10k at Victoria Park.

First home was Rob Lowe in sixth place out of 418 finishers and first Vet 45 in an excellent 36min 18sec.

He was followed home by Craig Segal, 20th in a personal best time (PB) for the distance of 37:59.

Other results saw Alex Smith 32nd in 39:57, Martyn Coulter 49th in 41:07 (PB), Sharon Wright 61st and first female Vet 35 in 41:55 (PB) and Debbie Barry 208th and first Female Vet 55 in 51:07.

Meanwhile, at the Trifarm Triple Crown Sprint Triathlon at Chelmsford, an 800m open water swim, 20k bike ride and 5k run, Graeme Butler finished in 22nd place out of 100 finishers in 1:16:51.

At the Hackney Marshes parkrun Rob Lowe finished in fourth place out of 220 finishers in a fantastic time of 17:15.

Racing in the Penrose parkrun in Cornwall, Harlow's Andrew Kitson finished eighth out of 265 finishers in 19:04.

The Holkham parkrun in Norfolk saw Vicky Steadman complete the course in 66th place out of 203 finishers in 24:25, while at the Clacton parkrun, Chris McCarthy finished 63rd out of 133 finishers in 28:31.

Penguins pick up plenty of medals

Gold galore for Harlow swimmers at Leisurezone

HARLOW Penguins Swimming Club finished their season in style by hosting the Eric Shepherd Open Meet at the Harlow Leisurezone with 270 swimmers competing from across the region.

There were a number of terrific performances from the Penguins with many achieving personal best times, including swimmers as young as nine competing in their first gala.

Overall, 19 of the host club's swimmers won a total of 39 gold medals.

The top performing Harlow swimmer was Daniel Monk with an impressive six gold medals and one silver.

Alessandro Rioda also delivered a strong performance, winning gold medals in each of his five events.

The other multiple gold medal winners were: Ethan Peirce (three golds), Karl Batorski (three golds), Carys Brealey (two golds), Lilly-Mae Kilbey (two golds), Mason Arnold (two golds), Max Arnold (two golds), Misty Eren (two golds), Silvester Havrillay (two golds) and William White (two golds).

Ellie Cronin, Glennon Lee, Jack Mansfield, Lottie Doble, Maisy Hills, Megan Cook, Olivia Smith-Lal and Taisia Tiron each won one gold medal.

Sponsored

The top visiting club award went to Colchester; the top boy trophy was awarded to Jack Eden (Chalfont Otters) and the top girl was Lucy Morgan (Colchester).

The Custom Lofts sponsored Harlow Penguins finished a highly-creditable third in Division One of the Essex League this season. That followed a hard fought final gala at Walthamstow last month which saw the Penguins battle hard to finish second on the night.

Members of Harlow Penguins at the Eric Shepherd Open Meet

Harlow currently sit in second place in the Essex Mini League, further reinforcing the Penguins' position as one of the top clubs in the region.

The latest gala at Braintree saw Penguins dominate, winning 25 of the 49 events on the night and record a convincing win with 187 points, ahead of Braintree (167), Clacton (144) and Witham Dolphins 132.

There were 11 PBs in the individual swims on the day and numerous best times in the relay splits, with Richard Kent making his Penguin debut.

The club caters for those learning to swim in their Penguins Swim School, and anyone starting out on their competitive swimming careers through a structured competitive pathway via their academy and development squads.

It also welcomes swimmers aiming to compete at county, regional and national level through their performance swim squads.

Squad members compete in the Arena National Swimming League, M11 Junior Swimming League, Essex Swimming League and Essex Mini League.
